THE ANGULO BROTHERS

The weirdest brothers in the world: Imprisoned for years by their father in a tiny Manhattan apartment in New York, their only contact with the world was watching films. Now they're in one!

Dressed in dark glasses, white shirts, black suits, and black ties – just like the robbers in Quentin Tarantino's thrilling movie Reservoir Dogs – they seem like any group of teenagers trying to look cool. But there is an astonishing reason why the six Angulo brothers try so hard to imitate their favourite film stars. For the Angulos, for 14 years, watching films wasn't just an escape from the outside world, it was their world. The six boys and their elder sister were imprisoned in an overcrowded, messy flat by an eccentric and tyrannical father who wanted to keep them from the horrors of modern life in New York. Home-schooled by their mother Susanne, the family was so reclusive that many neighbours didn't even know they were there. 'Once, we didn't leave the apartment for a whole year,' says Govinda.

'Once, we didn't leave the apartment for a whole year.'

However, the children were not completely cut off from the outside world. Their father had a collection of 5,000 DVDs and videos and the children watched these films time and time again. Now their story, which is stranger than any film, is told in a documentary film called The Wolfpack.

The six Angulo brothers: Bhagavan, Govinda, Narayana, Mukunda, Krisna, and Jagadesh.

THEIR STORY

The family's extraordinary story began in the late eighties, when Susanne Reisenbichler, a young American hippy, met Oscar Angulo, a Peruvian tour guide and musician, on a trail to the majestic Machu Picchu ruins. They fell in love and moved to the US, finally to New York, where they started a family.

Oscar, terrified that his children would fall into a life of drugs and crime, locked the front door and kept the key. The family lived on welfare money and only Oscar went out, usually for food or to collect new films for his children. The boys say they learned a lot about life from these films.

'We learned about the importance of family from films such as The Godfather,' says Govinda.

'The films taught us that people are complex and ... flawed,' says Narayana. 'But there is so much beauty in the world.'

'It was only when we got to our teens that we started to realize we were living a very different life to other people,' Mukunda says. 'We began to get more curious. One morning, I simply woke up and decided to go out while my dad was getting groceries.'

Wearing a scary home-made mask, modelled on the one worn by the killer in the horror film Halloween, the 15-year-old escaped onto the city streets. Shocked by his appearance, a shopkeeper called the police, but Mukunda refused to answer their questions. The police took him to a hospital, where he stayed for a week before being returned home.

'I told Dad things were going to be different,' says Mukunda. 'He was angry, but he accepted it.'

Dressed in their Reservoir-Dogs look, all six began to go out on their own. It was on such a trip that they met documentary film maker Crystal Moselle.

'We're not supposed to talk to strangers,' they told her, shyly, when she tried to talk to them. However, they grew to trust her because of their shared love of films.

Eventually Crystal uncovered their incredible story and the boys, seeing it as a way to get jobs in the film industry, agreed to work with her to make a documentary.

'I felt I had discovered a lost tribe,' she says. A producer friend named them 'the Wolfpack'.

Nowadays, the boys are living much more in the real world: they have friends and one has a girlfriend; most have jobs, three of them in the film industry. The two youngest have changed their names to Eddie and Glenn and want to be rock musicians.

'We learned about the importance of family from films such as The Godfather'

Listening and speaking My closest relative

1 Discuss the statements in small groups. Are they true for your family?

- Fathers feel closer to their daughters.
- The first-born child is ambitious, responsible, dominant, and insecure.
- The second child is free, independent, creative, and easy-going.
- The last-born child is the baby – spoiled, happy, confident, and secure.

2  1.9 Listen to four people talking about who they feel closest to in their family. Complete the chart with the relationship and then ✓ and ✗.

	Tess	Simon	Ellie	Nick
I feel closest to ...	My sister
She/He's like me	X
He/She is different
We have common interests
She/He gets on well with people
Is the relationship always good?

4 Who said these phrases? About who? What do they mean?

- 1 'We don't really see eye to eye about anything.'
- 2 'She drives me crazy sometimes.'
- 3 'We have our ups and downs.'
- 4 'Those two often fight like cat and dog.'

SPOKEN ENGLISH Adding emphasis

 'One thing I love about her is her sunny personality.'
 'What I like best about her is the way she's so honest about herself.'
 'What I like about him is that we have the same interests.'

3 Use the phrases in 2 to emphasize what you like about ...

the way she never forgets my birthday.

Talking about you

1 Of all my relatives, I like my Uncle Joe the best. He's my mother's much younger brother. He was only nine when I was born, so he's been more like a big brother to me than an uncle. He is in his mid-20s now and he is always such 5 good fun to be with.

He studied at a drama school in Liverpool, and then he moved to London a year ago to try his luck in the theatre. He shares a flat with three other would-be actors and he works as a waiter and a part-time DJ. He's passionate about his music. It's 10 called house music, and it's a kind of electronic dance music. When he 'deejays' he goes completely wild, waving his arms and yelling at the crowds. Everybody catches his enthusiasm. He's absolutely brilliant, and I'm proud that he's my uncle.

Also, I think he is really good-looking. He's quite tall with 15 sandy-coloured hair, and twinkly, dark brown eyes. He's had lots of girlfriends, but I don't think there is anyone particularly special at the moment. He has a great relationship with his flatmates – they are always laughing and joking together. He knows how to have fun, but he's also an extremely caring

20 person. I can talk to him about all kinds of problems that I could not discuss with my parents. He's very understanding of someone my age.

He works hard and he plays hard. He's had lots of auditions for various theatrical roles. He hasn't had much luck yet, 25 but I'm sure that one day he'll be a highly-successful actor. I think he's really talented, but he says he doesn't want to be rich or famous, he just wants to prove to himself that he's a good actor.

SPOKEN ENGLISH Sounding polite

- In English conversation, it doesn't sound polite or friendly if you reply with just yes or no. Try to give short answers using auxiliaries.
'Did you have a good day?' >
'Yes, I did.' / 'No, I didn't.'
- It also helps the conversation if you add some more information.
'Are you enjoying college?' >
'Yes, I am. I really like the teacher, and I've made a lot of friends.'

 - Did you walk to class?

EDDIE IZZARD

- Born 1962, Yemen.

- Often tours abroad, and has been performing in other languages since 2011.

THE WILDLIFE EXPERT:

CHRIS PACKHAM

FACT FILE

In France, where I have a house, it's quite remote and none of my neighbours spoke any English. I rocked up ten years ago and had no more ability in French than being able to go to Paris and survive a weekend. I bought some CDs, but learning it that way didn't work for me, so I had to think of a plan B.

I bought some wildlife books at a local bookshop and because I understood the context, I was able to read them cover to cover and grasp some of what they were saying. Then I said to my neighbours: 'Look, I'll speak to you in French and I want you to constantly correct me. I won't be offended.' And they were great, they did.

I do find it quite difficult. If I was living in the language all the time, I'd get on top of it and it would stick. The longest stint I've had there has been three months, and by the end of that I was thinking in French

The British have always had a poor reputation for learning languages – and it's getting worse. The number of UK students studying a language at university continues to fall, and most schoolchildren take advantage of the fact that they can drop foreign languages at 14. Is this not understandable, though? Why would any Brit want to spend countless hours struggling to learn a language when most of the world is keen to speak English to them?

Here, two high-profile British language learners explain how learning a language has enriched their lives, and what sparked their passion for learning languages.

France, and after that I'll be doing it in Spanish, then Russian, then Arabic. They say if you have French and English you should be speaking Spanish pretty well after a month of deep immersion. If I get stuck with a word or a phrase during a show I ask the audience, 'How do you say such and such', and they help out.

I don't find languages easy, but I have a hunger to learn. When you can speak another language you go from being a person in an adult's body pointing at things like a child to being able to communicate with people like an adult again.

There's a political basis for me to learn other languages because if we don't come together in the world, then the world's not going to make it. There's a business case, too – I'm beginning to turn a profit on my foreign shows. Plus, no stand-up has done this before, so there's also the fun, bloody adventure of it.

and putting sentences together in a French way, and it felt really good.

What's brilliant is that I can meet up with my neighbours now and have a laugh with them. They'll gossip with me, whereas before it would have been quite formal and polite. So you feel much more a part of things. People have been extraordinarily welcoming and are appreciative of the fact that I've made the effort to converse with them.

GARY RUDD | THE LONELINESS OF THE FOOTBALL MANAGER

1 How do you get a balance between work and home life?

Well, it's tricky, but I've been married for ten years and I've been doing this job for three years and very fortunately my lovely wife understands how stressful it is. Also, it helps that we live near my work – we have a nice house not far from the football ground.

We have two kids; twin daughters. Thank goodness they both love football! They often come to watch the matches, but I never seem to have time to do dad-type things with them. My job is so time-consuming. I usually work six days out of seven and always at weekends.

Don't get me wrong. I love my job – it's challenging and exciting, I never know what's going to happen. I like training the lads, they're great guys. But it's often lonely. I enjoyed all my years as a player – I loved all the dressing-room chat and socializing after the game. Now I'm not invited to join them.

Not much! We don't have a social life these days. I try to switch off when I get home and do stuff round the house, but it's difficult. I like doing DIY, but I rarely finish anything – I'm painting the kitchen at the moment, I've been doing it for weeks and it's not finished yet.

Ah – she's a very patient lady and she has lots of interests of her own, but ...

I don't have an answer to that. I want to leave when the team are doing well. I have no idea when that will be. I'm hoping before my marriage ends – don't worry ... I'm joking!

IS THIS THE BEST BOSS IN AMERICA?

Dan Price: the American CEO who took a pay cut to give his staff a $70k minimum wage

“ It's Monday morning and a dozen people are sitting around a conference table in an office on an industrial estate in rainy Seattle. A woman is writing on a white board. Coffee is being sipped. It's just after 8 a.m. I'm at a meeting in the credit card processing firm, Gravity Payments. A latecomer slips in and takes a seat among them. With his unkempt hair, jeans, and trainers, he looks like just another member of staff. But this is the boss, Dan Price, probably the best boss in the world. ”

★ Last April, Dan Price announced that he was going to pay all his staff a minimum wage of $70,000 (£46,000) – the average at the time was $48,000 (£31,000). This amount, he decided, was necessary for a ‘normal life’. To help pay for this, he cut his $1.1 million salary to the same amount. In a world of greedy CEOs and terrible income inequality, Price’s action made him a hero for low-paid workers. There were 500 million posts on social media as the news flew around the world.

Then came the criticism, immediate and violent. Fox News called him the ‘lunatic of all lunatics’. Business leaders and economists attacked him for interfering with the free market.

I met Price at the offices of his company in Seattle. The attack has not lessened his enthusiasm, but he’s worried. He’s aware the world is watching. Researchers from Harvard Business School are tracking Gravity’s results.

The new pay structure affects 70 of the 120 employees. Price wants all his staff to experience the ‘American Dream’ and is clearly moved by the ways their lives have already improved.

I spoke to Nydelis Ortiz, a 26-year-old underwriter at Gravity, whose salary will nearly double from $36,000. She was the first in her family to go to college. ‘I’m making more than both my parents combined. My mom cried,’ she says. ‘I had credit card debt, student loans ... this has given me peace of mind.’

Then there’s Garret Nelson, 31, a sales rep. His $5,000 pay increase came at a good time for the father of five – his youngest daughter is just a few days old. He thinks there are many people hoping Price’s experiment will fail. ‘As a salesman he knows it’s vitally important that it works. ‘If we fail, ... this experiment will fail.’

It’s not only Gravity workers whose lives are improving. Price has heard of hundreds of other bosses who have raised wages after hearing his story. ‘I get letters, emails, Facebook and Twitter messages,’ he says. ‘It’s great. I get close to tears every one I hear. There was a clothes factory in Vietnam that tripled their pay ...’

Other company owners told him he was crazy, but he thinks his staff work harder and their lives are easier because they have ‘less stress’. CEOs prepared to cut their salaries are rare. In the US, they now make 300 times more than a typical worker – it was 20 times in 1965. In the UK, it’s 183 times as much.

Price, the boy from rural Idaho, used to have a jet-set lifestyle. This is now on hold. His work fills his life. He’s not even got time for a girlfriend. He says, ‘I’ve got a thousand things going on’. And at least he has the company of his dog, Mikey.

Whatever happens next, Price is sure of one thing – the millions he’s spending on his pay project is the best money he’s ever spent. His employees are very grateful, but they also feel worried. If the experiment fails, it will not just be Price who gets hurt. ★

Subject: Job application

Dear Ms Owens,

I am writing in response to your advertisement on the JOBSEEKERS website for a receptionist in your hotel.

I believe that I am a good candidate for this position as I have three years' experience working in hotels both in the UK and abroad. I am currently in France, where I have been working for the past year at the 3-star Hôtel de Beau Regarde, near Avignon. During my employment in France I have become fluent in the French language. I was already proficient in Spanish, having worked previously in Barcelona.

My employment in France and Spain has also helped me develop my communication and organizational skills. I have always received excellent feedback, not only from hotel guests, but also from my colleagues at the front desk and throughout the hotel.

Please find attached my CV with references from my previous employers for your consideration. I am returning to the UK next week and I will be immediately available for an interview.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

Brendan Mulligan

 Was chewing little bits of string.
 At last he swallowed some which tied Itself in ugly knots inside.
 Physicians of the utmost fame
 Were called at once; but when they came
 They answered, as they took their fees,
 'There is no cure for this disease.
 Henry will very soon be dead.'
 His parents stood about his bed
 Lamenting his untimely death,
 When Henry, with his latest breath,
 Cried 'Oh, my friends, be warned by me,
 That Breakfast, Dinner, Lunch, and Tea
 Are all the human frame requires ...'
 With that, the wretched child expires.

- Was it an immediate success?

Oscar Wilde (1854–1900) was an Irish writer who became one of London's most popular playwrights in the late 19th century. He wrote just one novel, The Picture of Dorian Gray. At first, this was very badly received, but years later, after Wilde's death, it was finally recognized as a great classic. Wilde always defended Dorian Gray, saying that 'the idea of a young man selling his soul in exchange for eternal youth' was 'old in the history of literature'. Over the years, there have been many adaptations for stage and film.

The Picture of Dorian Gray

by Oscar Wilde

London, late 19th century

1 Basil Hallward was working in his studio on a portrait of a beautiful young man, when he was visited by his pleasure-loving friend, Lord Henry Wotton. Henry was very impressed by the portrait and wanted to meet this charming youth, Dorian Gray. This worried Basil.

4 Dorian and Henry soon became great friends and Dorian began to seek new pleasures around London. One day, he confided to Henry that he had been to an old Shakespearian theatre in the East End, and fallen in love with 'Juliet', a beautiful young actress called Sibyl Vane.

7 Dorian left Sibyl and walked the streets. Arriving home at dawn, his eye caught the portrait and he jumped back in horror. The face had changed – his soft expression had become hard and cruel. Suddenly he recalled what he'd said in Basil's studio. Dorian was afraid!

10 Basil's body lay beneath the portrait, which was now sweating blood. A cruel and desperate Dorian contacted a former doctor friend, Alan Campbell, and managed to blackmail the horrified man into helping him get rid of Basil's body.

The characters

Dorian Gray: a wealthy, cultured, extremely handsome young man

Basil Hallward: a well-known portrait painter

Lord Henry Wotton: a pleasure-seeking Oxford University friend of Basil's

Sibyl Vane: a young Shakespearean actress

Dr Alan Campbell: former friend of Dorian

Mrs Vane: Sibyl's mother

James Vane: Sibyl's brother, a sailor

2 At that moment, Dorian arrived and, to Basil's distress, invited Henry to stay and watch. Immediately Henry started to charm Dorian with his clever ideas about life. Basil continued painting, but Dorian was tired and went into the garden. Henry followed.

3 Dorian listened wide-eyed to Henry's words about the horrors of old age. He had never thought about this before. He viewed his youthful self in the finished portrait and felt troubled. It would never grow old and ugly. He would sell his soul to remain young forever, like the portrait.

5 Sibyl lived with her poor mother and brother James, who was preparing to sail to Australia. James was frightened for his beloved sister. She had told them of her great love of 'Prince Charming', whose real name she did not know, but who came to see her play each night.

6 Finally, Dorian asked Sibyl to marry him. He invited Henry and Basil to see her act so that they could see why he had fallen for her. She looked lovely as Juliet. Then she spoke ... her acting was terrible, meaningless. Dorian, embarrassed and furious, ended the engagement.

8 Next day, Dorian approached the portrait, sick with fear. He was gazing at it with disbelief when Lord Henry arrived. Dorian told him that he'd now decided to marry Sibyl after all. Henry gasped! Dorian hadn't received his note – Sibyl was dead!

9 Years passed. Dorian tried to drown his guilt in a life of pleasure and scandal. Basil came to confront him about his evil ways, and reacted with horror when Dorian revealed the now hideous portrait. In a fit of rage, Dorian blamed Basil for all his suffering, and stabbed his friend to death.

11 Dorian tried to forget Basil and the portrait. Again he threw himself into his decadent life. One night in a pub by the river, a sailor grabbed him from behind. It was Sibyl's brother, James! But how could this youthful-looking man be Dorian? James ran off in fear.

12 Finally, Dorian had suffered enough. He wanted his old life back. He went to see the portrait. To his horror, it had become even more repulsive. He had to destroy it. He took a knife and stabbed the picture ... The police found the body of an ugly, wrinkled old man beneath a perfect portrait.

Education in Victorian England 1832–1901

In Victorian England, education played a very small role in most children's lives. In 1840, only 20% of children had any schooling at all. Then, in 1840 an Education Act was passed which said that children aged 5–10 should attend school. However, many parents ignored this because they needed their children to work and earn money for the family. It was only in 1880 that school became obligatory for all children until the age of 10, with 70 or 80 pupils in a class. Then, in 1899, the school leaving age was raised to 12.

5  5.6 What do you think the professor says about the beer? Listen to the end of the lecture and find out.

The jar of pebbles

Part 1

As Professor X entered the lecture hall, many of the students continued chatting noisily. When he reached the front of the hall, instead of calling for attention, the professor quietly placed his briefcase on the desk and then brought out from behind it a large, empty glass jar and a bag of pebbles. The room gradually fell silent as each of the students noticed what he was doing, and realized that this was no ordinary philosophy lecture. They watched curiously as he started dropping the pebbles carefully into the jar. When the glass was full of pebbles, he finally looked up at the students and asked them:

'So, would you say that this jar is full?'

'Yes,' one of them answered.

'Do you agree, Sabina?' the professor asked.

'Yes,' replied Sabina.

'Dan?'

'Yeah, it's full of pebbles.'

'Mmmm, maybe, but you need to pay more attention to the actual question,' said the professor.

He then reached behind the desk once more, and picked up a bag of dried peas. He poured the peas into the jar, and rolled the jar around. As the peas fell through the gaps between the pebbles, he continued to pour them in, until no more would fit.

'So, would you say that the jar is full now?' asked the professor.

'Yes,' 'Yup, it's full now,' 'Yeah,' the students answered.

'OK ...' said the professor.

He smiled as he took a bag of sand from behind the desk and poured it into the jar. Obviously, the sand ran through the pebbles and peas and filled all the remaining space in the jar.

'So ..., is the jar full now?' he asked.

'Yes, it's definitely full!'

'Do you all agree?'

'YES!'

The class began to giggle as the professor reached behind the desk once more. This time he produced a can of beer, and the laughter increased as he opened the can and slowly poured the beer into the jar, letting it soak into the sand until no more would go in.

Part 2

When the laughter had died down, the professor began to speak.

“OK, joking aside, I want you to see that this jar is like your life. Now, we’ve all got to do some work to earn money, but apart from that, in a free society you’re allowed to fill your life with pretty much whatever you want to.

The pebbles represent the big things in your life, the really important things – your partner, your family, your friends, your health, your strongest passions. Sure, there are other things that seem really important, but the pebbles are the things which, even if you lose everything else, mean that your life can still be full and meaningful.

The peas are other things which are also important in your life – your job, your house, your car. But you don’t need to have these things in order for life to be meaningful, and they’re not as difficult to replace if you lose them. And the sand ... that’s everything else in life – the small stuff. You can have great fun with it – watching TV, going on Facebook, playing video games. But, here’s the lesson in this ...

If you look around, you’ll notice that a lot of people’s lives, and maybe your own, can easily get filled up with too much sand and too many peas. You mustn’t let this happen, because if the jar’s full of sand and peas, there’s no space for the pebbles. You’ve got to keep an eye on how much time you’re devoting to the small things in life, because if you’re not careful, you won’t have enough space for the big things that are most important in life. You should make sure you’re spending enough time on the things that bring you real happiness – doing something special with your partner, playing with your children, seeing good friends. You can always make time to do all the other things you think you have to do, chores like cleaning the house, washing the car ... and you might decide you don’t really have to do them as often as you think. So, take care of the pebbles first, and decide what your real priorities are in life – the rest is just sand.”

‘What about the beer?’ asked Kirsty...

How to save a wet phone

“ Have you ever dropped your phone in water, or spilled a drink on it? If so, you're not alone – a third of phones are lost because of water damage, and it doesn't always help if they're waterproof. Well, I can't promise anything, but today I'm going to tell you how you may be able to save a wet phone.

1 _____ you must get the phone out of the water 2 _____. I know that might seem obvious, but it's important to realize that every second it's in the water, the more likely it is to be too damaged to repair. So, don't stand there panicking, and shouting 'Oh no!' Just rescue it immediately.

Next, you must switch the phone off straight away to stop water damaging the electrical circuits.

If it was off when it got wet, you must leave it off. You mustn't switch it on to see if it's working. Of course, you're dying to find out if it is, but switching it on at this point is the worst thing you could do.

Now, wipe off any water from the outside of the phone, using some paper towels. 3 _____ gently shake the phone, so that any water inside has a chance to come out.

After that, you need to dry out the inside of the phone as much as possible. Don't use a hairdryer to try and dry it quickly – that might seem like a good idea, but the heat will do even more damage to the phone. It needs to dry out nice and slowly. So, get some uncooked rice and put it in a plastic box or bag, and put the phone in the middle of the rice. Close the box or bag so that the air can't get in, and 4 _____ leave it for about 48 hours. 5 _____ it's drying out, you mustn't keep opening it to see what's happening. Be patient!

6 _____ 48 hours you can take it out and try switching it on. You might be lucky and find the phone is working perfectly! But, be careful! You should back up everything on your phone as soon as you can because there may still be a problem and it could stop working again later.

7 _____ if you need to take it to a repair shop, or return it to the manufacturer, you have to be honest about what's happened. Most warranties don't cover water damage, and it's no good saying 'My phone's not working and I don't know why.' They put things inside the phone that tell them it's been in water, so they'll know you aren't telling the truth.

Anyway, good luck, and take care of your phones!

Forest man

Don Jackman finds an example of a rare species – an environmental feel-good story.

There's no shortage of gloomy stories about the environment. Most of us have heard alarming reports of climate change and environmental destruction, but we often feel powerless to do anything other than get depressed about it.

Jadav Payeng didn't get depressed. His is the heartening story of a man who decided not to give in to that feeling of powerlessness. He has totally transformed the environment around him, single-handedly.

A dying island

It all began when he was a teenager, in 1979. Jadav grew up on Majuli Island in northern India, the largest river island on Earth, and enjoyed walking along its shores. One day, he saw hundreds of dead snakes on the river bank. Flood waters had washed them there, and there was no vegetation for them to shelter in. 'The snakes died in the heat, without any tree cover. I sat down and wept ...'. Jadav realized how serious the problem of deforestation was – floods were washing away the soil where trees had been cut down. Majuli, with a growing population of 170,000 people, had lost 70% of its land over the last century.

Jadav planted some tree saplings on the barren land, but they died and it seemed nothing would grow there. He didn't want to give up though, and when he talked to some of the older people in his village, they suggested he try planting bamboo.

The first plantings

So Jadav went out every day, making holes for bamboo plants in the desert-like ground with a stick, and in a few years, large areas of bamboo forest had grown. He learned that red ants improved the condition of the soil, so he carried hundreds of them onto the land. He was stung many times. 'That was an experience!' he says, laughing.

He then decided to try growing proper trees again in the improved soil. The saplings survived this time, but as they grew in number, watering them regularly was a big challenge for one man. He hung pots of water full of small holes over each one, and the water slowly dripped down over several days.

Since then, Jadav has been planting saplings and seeds every day, for nearly 40 years. He gets up at 3.30 a.m. to milk his cows, which provide a living for his wife and children, and then sets out for the forest at 8.30.

Life returns

As the forest has grown and grown, wildlife has returned – eventually rhinos, tigers, and elephants began to take shelter among the trees. Jadav then had to face his biggest challenge – men. It wasn't only the loggers who wanted to cut down his trees, but local villagers, too. They were worried about the elephants and tigers eating their crops and attacking their animals. Jadav said they would have to kill him before they killed his forest. He had the idea of planting banana trees for the elephants to eat, and made sure there was enough deer for the tigers to hunt, so they wouldn't need to go into the villages for food. The tigers have taken some of his own cows, but then, says Jadav with a smile, 'they don't know how to farm, do they?'

Future forest

The forest is now 1,400 acres, nearly twice the size of New York's Central Park. Jadav's story has been made into a film, The Forest Man of India, by a Canadian filmmaker, Douglas McMaster. McMaster followed Jadav for a month and says,

'He taught me that you can accomplish a lot with very little ... He doesn't even wear shoes. His way of life is extremely pure; free of possessions, yet he is extremely happy and positive.'

Is Jadav himself satisfied with what he's achieved? Well, yes, but his aim now is to create another forest on other barren land nearby. 'It may take another 30 years, but I am optimistic about it,' he says. 'No more global warming if everyone plants forest!'

Ann Daniels – polar explorer

1 What is this advert for? What is surprising about it?

2 Read about Ann Daniels.

- How did she become a polar explorer?
- Why wasn't she an obvious choice for a polar expedition?

ORDINARY WOMEN WANTED

To become members of the first all-female relay team to walk to the North Pole. No experience needed.

It was in 1997 that Ann Daniels saw a newspaper advert from the Polar Travel Company. It said 'ordinary women'. Well, she was working in a bank, and she was a mother – though of young triplets, which perhaps wasn't so ordinary. As she says, 'I had three children, and I thought, if I can do that, I can do anything.' She certainly had no experience of outdoor activities ('I'd never had a rucksack on my back – I was born in an inner city'), and she borrowed all the clothes and equipment she needed for the first selection weekend. She then had nine months of intensive training, and, as she puts it, 'I was very lucky that some idiot chose me'.

Ann is now one of only two women who have walked to both the North and South Poles as part of an all-female team. She has taken part in scientific expeditions to measure the polar ice cap, so that scientists can work out how long it will last. She is also a popular international speaker.

3 Which of these nouns do you associate with an expedition to the North Pole? Use a dictionary to help.

misery joy agony humour pain wonder beauty gloom horror optimism achievement

- 4 Ann feels that for mothers / children, it's useful to remember the best parts of their experience, rather than the worst.
- 5 Steve talks about a good / bad memory being an advantage for an explorer.

5 6.5 Listen to Part 2. What is Ann's position in her family? Does Ann agree with Steve's theory about how this helped to make her an explorer?

6 6.5 Listen again to Part 2 and answer the questions.

- 2 What was her career ambition?
- 3 How did she feel compared to her brothers?

What do you think?

Andrea Bocelli: from law to opera

Andrea Bocelli grew up on a farm in a village in Tuscany, Italy. Unfortunately, he suffered from poor eyesight from birth, and an accident playing football left him completely blind at the age of 12. This didn't stop him living life very actively, or singing and playing music passionately.

Andrea's parents supported his musical ambitions, but, he says, 'they wanted me to have a serious education, with real professional opportunities.' He agreed to study law at the University of Pisa. 'Many of my relatives were lawyers, so I went to university and studied diligently.' He continued with his music, which wasn't just a passion – it also paid the bills. Andrea played piano in bars in order to pay for his law studies and singing lessons (and it really helped him to meet girls!). After graduating as a Doctor of Law, he practised as a state lawyer. 'It's an interesting job, but when you have a vocation for something, you end up following that.' He decided to focus on becoming a professional singer.

When the Italian rock singer Zucchero was looking for tenors to record his song Miserere, he first asked Pavarotti to do it, and sent him a recording of Bocelli singing it. Pavarotti replied, 'Why do you need me? You already have the right singer.' Bocelli has since performed the song as a duet with Pavarotti.

Bocelli has become an international superstar tenor. He's had great success as a 'crossover' artist, bringing classical music to the top of international pop charts. He's recorded over 30 albums of pop, classical music, and operas. His album Sogno, which featured a duet with Celine Dion, was hugely popular and has sold extremely well – more than ten million copies worldwide.

Despite his blindness, Andrea has always liked to live dangerously. He rides horses, cycles, skis, surfs, and goes parachute jumping. 'In the middle of the night he rides horses,' his wife Veronica says. 'He's crazy. He's an artist.'

My worst exam result!

Bidy Arnott

Ted Stockton

Winston Laurent

'It's years since I took any exams, but I can still remember feeling sick with fear before each one. I was a bit of a "nerdy" student, I always did my homework and revised hard, so, usually, I didn't find it too difficult to pass exams – that's why the memory of the one exam I failed makes me shudder to this day. It was my domestic science exam – at least that's what they used to call it in those days – it was, in fact, a cookery exam. And who could possibly fail that? I know all we ever learned to make in class were ginger biscuits and Spaghetti Bolognese, but I'm still not sure how I managed to fail. All I can remember is that, one minute the fish pie was in my hands, the next, it was face down on the floor. I tried to pick up the bits and arrange them in another dish. But it was hopeless, and I knew it. I failed miserably – my worst ever result. Ironically, today, I am quite a good cook – I just hate making fish pie!'

'I'm a teacher and I think it's good to be able to say to my shocked students: "I once got 9% in an exam." That was what I scored in the chemistry exam at the end of my first year at university. My other results weren't much better, I only just managed to get enough marks overall to allow me to continue to the second year. Actually, the dismal mark was no surprise – I'd had a ball in my first year and neglected my studies. But 9%! My tutors expected me to do better than that. The good thing was that I realized that my choice of degree was a big mistake and I decided to change course and study English literature. A great decision because it resulted in me becoming a teacher, and when I want to warn my students about the dangers of not working hard I tell them about my 9%!'

'I wasn't a star pupil, but I was good at taking exams. I was particularly good at maths and physics and I dreamed of becoming an astronaut. I hoped to be the first black guy on Mars – failing that, a stockbroker in the City and make millions. Our maths teacher let us work at our own speed, and by the time I was 14 I was years ahead of the rest of my class. My teacher encouraged me to take the Advanced-level maths exam at 14, but I was worried about being called a "swot" so I refused to. I stopped working so hard. Then, when I finally took the exam at 18, I failed miserably. I could no longer look forward to being an astronaut or a stockbroker. I studied politics and sociology instead, and finally became a TV news reporter. I love it, but I'd have preferred to walk on Mars.'

Gordonstoun

the school

Prince Charles

loathed!

Gordonstoun is a famous and very expensive boarding school in a remote part of Scotland. It has its own fire station, theatre, yacht, and Mountain Rescue Unit.

Wealthy parents from all over the world are eager to pay up to £35,000 a year for its special brand of 'character education'. It has many famous 'old boys', including four princes from the British royal family.

Prince Philip and Charles

THE SCHOOL'S HISTORY

The school was founded in 1934 by the German educator, Kurt Hahn. He was born in Berlin in 1886, and studied at Oxford University. As a young man he read Plato's The Republic and came up with the idea of a modern school. In 1933, Hahn was arrested for daring to speak out against the Nazis. He was exiled to Britain and it was there that he decided to start a new school in Scotland. Its beginnings were very small, with only two students. The numbers gradually increased, and included the young Prince Philip of Greece, who went on to become the husband of Queen Elizabeth II. By the end of the 1940s, there were 250 boys.

Outdoor activities and risk-taking were central to Hahn's beliefs, so skills such as mountaineering and sailing were taught. Boys were expected to endure hard conditions, followed by icy cold showers. They wore shorts in all weathers, slept on hard bunk beds with the windows open, even in the freezing Scottish winters, and were made to go on long walks in pouring rain.

Hahn also believed that it was very important to understand different cultures, and encouraged the boys to work overseas. Over the years, they have helped build schools in Africa, wells in Thailand, and cared for orphans in Romania.

Prince Philip so enjoyed his years at Gordonstoun that in 1962 he and the Queen decided to send their shy, sensitive 12-year-old son, Prince Charles, there. Charles loathed it. He called it 'a prison sentence', 'Colditz in kilts', 'Absolute hell!' He was bullied, cold-shouldered, and mocked for having big ears. Kinder boys were afraid to befriend him. His father wrote him letters urging him to be strong. He wrote back, 'I wish I could come home.'

THE SCHOOL TODAY

Girls finally joined the school in 1972. There are now about 600 pupils, from the age of eight to 18, and 100 teachers, so there is a very low student-teacher ratio. There are nine boarding houses on the campus, three for the girls and six for the boys. They all have TVs, a common room, and a kitchen. It's a truly multicultural school, with about 35% of the students coming from 40 different countries. There is also an international summer school, attended every year by 250 children from all over the world. Nowadays, pupils are allowed to use email, text, Skype, and Facebook if they feel homesick.

Sport still plays a central role in the school's crowded timetable. Outdoors, there are tennis courts, and playing fields for rugby, football and cricket, and a 400 metre running track. Students can also do horse riding, rifle shooting, and golf. Indoors, there's a large sports centre with a rock climbing wall, a swimming pool, a weights room, squash courts and a hall for basketball, badminton, netball, and karate.

On the arts side there's a first-class music department with its own recording studio, drum studio, and concert room. Over 40% of the students learn to play an instrument. Also, there's an excellent drama department, which has its own 200-seat theatre. Like the school's talented musicians, its drama groups often tour overseas, most recently to the US.

Community service is an important part of Gordonstoun life. Every Wednesday, pupils help in the local area, visiting retirement homes, nursery schools, and hospitals. They also help with local fire and emergency services. The school has two fire engines and a Mountain Rescue Service.

Schools nowadays are often accused of being 'exam factories' – this cannot be said of Gordonstoun. It aims to produce much more 'rounded', 'risk-taking' adults.

Postscript: Old Gordonstounians

There are many other famous 'old boys' – Prince Charles' brothers, Princes Andrew and Edward followed in his and their father's footsteps. Princess Anne, the Queen's second child, was not educated at Gordonstoun, which at that time was for boys only, but she sent her two children, Zara and Peter, there. Other famous sons and daughters include, Oona Chaplin, granddaughter of Charlie Chaplin; Jason Connery and Duncan Jones, sons of Sean Connery and David Bowie respectively.

Pros and Cons

Childhood – Is it the best time of life?

- 1 Some people say that childhood is the best time of your life. However, being a child has both advantages and disadvantages.
- 2 On the plus side, you have few responsibilities. For example, you don't have to go to work, pay bills, or do the shopping or housework. This means you have plenty of time to do whatever you want – watch TV, play video games, go out with friends, play sports, or pursue other hobbies. In addition to this, public transport, cinema, and sports centres cost much less for children. All in all, being a child can be a fun time of life.
- 3 However, for every plus there is a minus. For one thing, you have to spend all day, every day, Monday to Friday, at school and this inevitably means that you have to do homework and take exams. What is more, although you have free time, you are rarely allowed to do whatever you want. You need your parents' permission before going out with friends, staying out late, or going to parties. It can sometimes seem that they want to stop you having any fun. Last of all, things may be cheaper for children, but that doesn't mean they are cheap. Children depend on getting pocket money and not all parents choose to, or are able to give generously. In reality some children can't afford to do much at all.
- 4 To sum up, despite its lack of responsibility, I believe that childhood is definitely not the best time of life. On the one hand, children may have free time, but conversely they do not have the freedom to choose what to do with it. They can feel pressurized both by parents and the education system. However, the increased responsibility that comes with age creates its own pressures, too.

The boy who

He made his own nuclear fusion reactor at the age of 14. He's helped the US government fight nuclear terrorism, and at 21, he has plans to improve cancer treatment. Does anything make Taylor Wilson nervous? Yes ... asking a girl out.

'He doesn't understand the meaning of 'can't'.'

'He's not just smart – he's cool and articulate.'

built a fusion reactor

An unusual boy

Kenneth Wilson and his wife Tiffany always knew their first son, Taylor, was unusual. Wanting to be an astronaut at the age of nine seemed normal enough, but, 'whatever he was involved in, he went at it non-stop,' says his father.

Taylor wrote to astronauts, built his own rockets, and gave talks at school about space exploration. 'Everyone loved watching him,' his head teacher said, 'and when he was in the room, he just took control.' Some of his neighbours weren't so happy about the explosions next door when Taylor experimented with rocket fuels.

For his 10th birthday, Taylor's grandmother got him a book about a bright teenager who nearly caused a disaster by trying to build a nuclear reactor at home. 'Know what?' said Taylor. 'The things that kid was trying to do, I'm pretty sure I can actually do them.'

Not just for fun

It wasn't just for fun. Taylor's grandmother had cancer, and he realized cancer treatment could be improved if hospitals had small fusion reactors to make the necessary radioactive materials in. He learned all the physics and engineering he needed, and collected radioactive materials from gadgets. It made his parents nervous, and he knows he was lucky they were so tolerant. 'When I said I wanted to build a nuclear fusion reactor in the garage, I think most parents would say no.'

One day, Taylor's mother came into the garage and saw him looking at a pool of liquid on the floor.

'Tay, it's time for supper.'

'I think I'm going to have to clean this up first.'

'That's not the stuff you said would kill us if it broke open, is it?'

'I don't think so. Not instantly.'

His parents asked some university physicists to talk to Taylor. They told his parents that Taylor knew what he was doing. He says he's never careless about safety. 'I'm very cautious. I'm actually a bit of a hypochondriac.'

Fusion success

His reactor worked, and he became one of the few people in the world to achieve nuclear fusion. And of course, at 14, he was also the youngest. He thinks youth helps. 'Kids sometimes have an advantage when it comes to invention.' Older scientists might say 'it can't be done or you shouldn't even try it, whereas kids are not so closed-minded. I hope I never lose that.'

'When I said I wanted to build a nuclear fusion reactor in the garage, I think most parents would say no.'

Taylor received a $100,000 two-year fellowship, on condition he didn't go to college and focused on his own projects. The fellowship has ended, but Wilson still isn't going to college. He's going to work on his inventions, and travel, and give talks. After Intel CEO Paul Otellini spoke to Taylor at a science fair, he said, 'All I could think was, "I am so glad that kid is on our side."'

The US government expressed interest in one of Taylor's inventions, which could help them in the fight against nuclear terrorism. He met the Under Secretary for Energy, who said, 'He's not just smart – he's cool and articulate. I think he may be the most amazing kid I've ever met.'

A big head?

Are his parents ever worried about Taylor becoming self-centred and arrogant? 'He's not being selfish, it's just that there's so much going on in his head,' says his sister. And if Taylor appears arrogant, it's because 'Taylor doesn't understand the meaning of "can't"', his father says. 'And when he does,' his mother adds, 'he doesn't listen.'

Taylor does think selfishness was a problem at first. 'I was exploring things because I was interested in them. It was fun, but in a way it was selfish too. Then it turned out that I was really good at it, and it became a responsibility. I realized I had the capability of doing things that could really change the world.'

He's confident his weaknesses will stop him getting too big-headed. He's not good at foreign languages or sport, and although this outgoing, expressive young man isn't the typical shy geek, he admits, 'What makes me nervous? Asking a girl for her number.'

My cause for concern

The thing I'm concerned about at the moment is the influence that video games may have on children.

Let me explain why. I've been reading lots of newspaper articles on the subject, and I also have a personal interest. You see, I have a younger brother, Craig, he's 13 years old, and I'm afraid he's becoming a video game addict. Just a few years ago, Craig had many interests; he played football, he was learning judo, he went out on his bike with his friends. He was a happy, fun-loving boy. Now he spends hours every day in front of a screen, in a virtual world, playing virtual games, usually violent ones, and he becomes really angry if our parents tell him to stop.

Research shows that children between the ages of two and five regularly play video games, and that by the age of eight, they spend an average of 25 minutes on them. It's much easier to find ways to play video games than it used to be, because of tablets and smartphones. This is not a problem for most children. However, by their early teens, a small minority have become addicts, playing for at least 30 hours a week. Dr Mark Griffiths of Nottingham Trent University, an expert in video game addiction, finds this figure worrying. He says that children may become so addicted that they stop doing homework, start playing truant, and even steal money in order to buy the games. It's likely that this addiction will only get worse with the coming of virtual reality headsets, which make the experience of getting completely lost in a virtual world even more powerful.

I have two more concerns. Firstly, I worry that the violence in the games could cause children to become more violent. My brother isn't violent, but he is certainly bad-tempered if he is stopped from playing. Secondly, I worry that sitting without exercise for so long is bad for your health. Craig often plays five hours a day, and some days his thumbs are really painful and he can't sleep because he is over-excited. His schoolwork is going from bad to worse.

Finally, Dr Griffiths says that more research is needed, but I don't need to read more research to conclude that video games cause problems. He should come and meet my brother. That's all the evidence he needs.

6 Look at the things the students might have said after this experiment and answer the two questions.

Student A 'If I hadn't been in a hurry, I'd have offered to help him.'

Student B 'If I'd stopped, I could have asked if he needed help.'

Student C 'I think I might have stopped if I hadn't been late.'

Student D 'I know I should have stopped. I wouldn't have walked past if it'd been in my town.'

- Did any of the students A–D stop?
- Did any of them help the man?

The Good Samaritan

Who cares? An experiment

A group of student priests were asked to prepare a talk on the story of The Good Samaritan. They were then told to go to another building to give their talk.

As they left, half of the students were told they were late and had to hurry. The others were told they had plenty of time. On the way, there was a man lying on the pavement, clearly in pain (it was an actor).

___ % of the students who thought they had plenty of time, stopped to help, but only ___ % of those who thought they were in a hurry stopped. Some of them said that they hadn't noticed the man as they hurried past, but many of them stepped over him ... in order to go and give a talk on ... The Good Samaritan.

Work with a partner. Think of things that you own that you could rent out. Suggest an idea for a sharing company to the class. Vote for the best idea.

 Watch a video about the concept of hygge.

What's yours is mine!

Every day, we're bombarded with advertising telling us to buy more stuff. Many of our homes are full of things we hardly ever use, and often couldn't have bought if it hadn't been on credit. Clearly, we live in a consumer economy, but a new alternative, the sharing economy, is beginning to change our attitude to buying and owning things.

So, perhaps you need an electric drill to put up some bookshelves? But would you buy one for £150 if you knew that the average person only uses their drill for between 6-13 minutes during its lifetime? And should you really have bought that huge ladder you only use once a year? The obvious question is, why don't we share these things with other people, and share the costs?

Safe sharing

Sharing used to be difficult to organize, and could feel risky, but the Internet, and smartphone apps, have made it easy, safe, and global. People can rent out anything they own and don't use much. Airbnb is the most successful example, with millions using it to make money by letting people stay in their spare rooms, or in their homes while they're away, and to find cheap accommodation when they travel themselves. Reviews provided by both hosts and guests mean you know whether you can trust what people are offering, and payment systems are secure and reliable.

The downsides

There are downsides. Many schemes run into problems with insurance and safety regulations – who would be responsible if a paying guest had an accident in your home? And taxi drivers aren't too happy about losing passengers to the taxi alternative Uber, another giant of the sharing economy.

A sense of community

As well as offering economic benefits to both users and providers, however, the rise in sharing could also bring back some of the sense of community that we've lost as a society. Libraries were once just for books, but now people are starting their own 'libraries' for all sorts of things. In South Korea, the local government has declared Seoul to be a 'sharing city'. There are schemes for neighbours to share cars, parking spaces, and office space. Apartment blocks have a 'library apartment', where residents can offer to share tools, suitcases, children's clothes, and yes, books! People even lend suits to young jobseekers who can't afford to buy one for interviews!

A

DogVacay

When dog owners have to go away without their pets, it can be challenging to find a kennel that will give their dog a loving, temporary home. DogVacay users offer to look after each others' dogs in their own homes. Your dog gets a friendly new home, and can make some new doggy friends!

Pley

Pley's co-founder Elina Furman had the idea for a 'Lego library' when she realized it could have saved her the $2,000 she'd spent on various sets sitting unused in the toy cupboard. She thinks toys are the perfect items to hire out, as children can get bored with them so quickly.

Campinmygarden

If you found you didn't have the budget even for Airbnb, you could get your tent out and use Campinmygarden to stay in someone's private garden for £10 a night.

Hundreds of gardens are available, all around the world, some of them conveniently close to city centres.

B

Stylend

If you spent £1,500 on that designer dress for a very special occasion, when would you ever wear it again? Would it spend the rest of its life in your wardrobe? On Stylend's site, women can see photos of other women's expensive clothes, which they can hire just for the day or evening.

TaskRabbit

TaskRabbit is an easy way to hire people to do jobs around the house for you. 'Taskrabbits' register with the company, and can bid to do jobs that people have posted on the website. Users could go for the lowest price, or rely on how other users have rated someone's work.

JustPark

JustPark makes it easy to profit from the parking space in front of your house by renting it to visitors to your area.

Drivers can use it regularly if they have to drive to work, or occasionally if they need a cheaper option to park near hospitals, airports, etc.

 - 4 What other reason does she give for not being married?
 - 5 Could her reasons for not marrying be just excuses? How do you know?

My solo wedding –

'I lie awake in my hotel room in Kyoto, nearly 6,000 miles from home, my stomach in knots. My mind is racing with thoughts of my wedding tomorrow. I take a deep breath and tell myself I don't have anything to worry about. I can't be stood up at the altar because the person I'm marrying is myself.'

A growing trend

The solo wedding is a growing trend in Japan. Like many of the women who use the service, I am a *spinster. I'm 42, and while all my friends are married or in long-term relationships, I sort of forgot to do it myself. In my late 20s, I thought I was dating the man I would marry, but he broke up with me abruptly. It was nearly 13 years before I had another relationship.

I used to think I was single because I lived in New York City during my 20s and 30s, where single women outnumber single men. Or because I travel so much for my work as a photographer. But I have many friends in New York in the same industry as me who have managed to meet, date, and marry. I've watched them get married, but I never thought I'd have a wedding of my own. Now here I am in Kyoto, awaiting my big day.

Getting ready for the Big Day

Yukiko Inoue has been running Cerca Travel for ten years. She is a 48-year-old divorcee. Two years ago, her colleague, 37-year-old Natsumi Akai, expressed interest in having her photos taken professionally in a wedding dress and the idea of the solo wedding was born. Since then, 130 Japanese women have paid ¥380,000 (£2,500) for a two-day package, including a dress-fitting, hair, makeup and a photo shoot – in short, everything except the actual ceremony.

I am met by Natsumi at the Ayumi Bridal dress shop. Natsumi is tall, slim, and beautiful. She tells me for her, the solo wedding was all about the dress.

'For Japanese women, the wedding dress is a symbol of being beautiful,' Natsumi explains. I, on the other hand, have never fantasized about wearing a wedding dress, and feel slightly nervous as Natsumi leads me into a private fitting room lined with puffy white gowns. But trying one on, I am shocked. I look in the mirror and I can't help catching my breath. I barely recognize the radiant, elegant woman I see. Natsumi smiles. 'You're a princess!'

In the end, I try on eight dresses. I end up choosing the first one I tried.

everything but the groom!

The Big Day!

In the morning, I wake up for my big day, only to look in the mirror and see that my eye is red and oozy with conjunctivitis. In the hotel lobby I meet Natsumi, who pretends not to notice. We take a taxi to a fashionable part of town, where we meet wedding stylist Mayumi Hayashi and wedding photographer Yuhino Suzuki.

I rarely dress up – in fact, putting a brush through my hair is a big occasion. Mayumi is up for the challenge, though, and places my hair in curlers before beginning to apply my makeup, expertly covering my weeping eye. I put on my dress and look in the mirror ... the reality is matronly, I look like ... the Queen!

We make our way to the Shugakuin Kirara Sanso Japanese garden, where I am photographed getting out of the car, walking in the garden and standing beneath the blossom. I pose for the customary wedding shots. No shots with the groom, sadly. I personally would have liked a fake husband in my photos.

There is no actual solo wedding ceremony, which is a shame, because I had imagined promising to love myself for richer, for poorer. But Natsumi says clients are often surprised by the self-confidence they gain from it. 'A solo wedding is a celebration of yourself. Many women have given up on getting married, and this makes them realize marriage isn't the only goal in life.'

Back home

Upon my return from Japan, I started dating someone. I wondered if my luck with men would now change. Sadly, this relationship also ended abruptly. Perhaps I'll find someone one day – but I don't need to have a big wedding. I already have my photo album. I am surprised to find that I love showing it off – I happened to meet Oscar-winning actress, Marion Cotillard, so I showed her my wedding pictures. 'It's depressing,' she said. 'These photos are very sad.'

Writing A story (2)

Organizing a text

- 1 What do you know about the sinking of the Titanic?
It was a huge passenger ship that hit an iceberg.
There was a film about it starring Leonardo DiCaprio.
- 2 Work with a partner. Look at the pictures and tell the story in your own words. Read Text A and match sentences from it with the pictures.

TEXT A The Unsinkable Titanic, 1912

On April 10, 1912, the Titanic left Southampton on her way to New York. There were many rich passengers on board. Everyone believed the ship was unsinkable so she didn't have many lifeboats.

On the night of April 14, the passengers were having dinner and listening to the band. The Titanic was travelling fast because the owner wanted his ship to beat the record for crossing the Atlantic. Some ships nearby warned of icebergs, but the messages were not delivered. A look-out sounded the alarm, but it was too late. The Titanic hit an iceberg and the ship sank quickly. The band played until it sank. The lifeboats only saved some of the people. Most of them died in the sea.

People today are still interested in the Titanic. The film, Titanic, was very popular.

- 3 Now read Text B. Compare it with Text A. Which is the more interesting text? Why? Give some examples.

TEXT B The Unsinkable Titanic, 1912

On April 10, 1912, the liner Titanic left Southampton on her maiden voyage to New York. Amongst her passengers were some of the world's wealthiest people. The ship was believed to be unsinkable, so she carried only 20 lifeboats, enough for only half her 2,235 passengers and crew.

On the evening of April 14, there was no wind and the sea was calm. The band were playing as the rich enjoyed their evening meal in the luxurious dining room. At 9.40 p.m., nearby ships warned of icebergs. However, the messages were not delivered. The owner of the ship was on board, encouraging the captain to go faster to beat the record for crossing the Atlantic. Finally, a look-out on the bridge sounded the alarm, but it was too late. At 11.40 p.m., the Titanic struck an iceberg. Passengers carried on dining, after all, this ship was unsinkable. In fact, the ship was sinking fast, but it was not until nearly 12.45 that the first lifeboat was lowered. At 2.20 a.m. the ship sank, just two hours and forty minutes after hitting the iceberg. Only 713 people survived. The remaining 1,522 all drowned in the dark waters of the Atlantic. These included most of the men and third class passengers, the crew, and all of the band. Amazingly, they had kept playing until the ship disappeared beneath the waves.

The ship sank over 100 years ago, but interest in the Titanic continues. 'Titanic', starring Leonardo DiCaprio, is the most watched film in movie history. Incredibly, in 1985, the wreck itself was discovered and photographed on the sea bed.

Digital versus physical

- 1 Work with a partner. Read the text Get real! Do you agree with what the writer says about the digital world?
- 2 Read the text again and answer the questions.
 - 1 What did Amazon do that was surprising?
 - 2 How could a physical bookstore increase online book sales?
 - 3 What might students in online universities miss?
 - 4 Which words have we forgotten the real meaning of?
 - 5 Why is it difficult to love e-Books themselves?
 - 6 Why do some people want vinyl records, board games, and print magazines?

Get real!

Can the digital world ever replace the physical world?

It was Amazon that started Internet shopping by moving book sales online. So why on earth did they later open a physical bookstore? It seems they discovered that people may buy a book online, but what makes them want to buy the book, is seeing it as a real object in a physical place.

Virtual learning

Virtual universities now provide free video lectures to millions of students. Online tests mark themselves automatically, students grade each other's essays, and there are Internet forums, too. But don't the students miss face-to-face discussions with each other? And isn't an enthusiastic teacher better in a classroom than on a video?

Old words, new meanings

Nearly all workers today spend time sitting in front of a computer screen, and we seem to lose touch with the physical world. We even forget that many of the words we use digitally come from the real world. For example, graphic designers used to CUT out text and pictures with scissors, and PASTE them into a document to get everything in the LAYOUT right!

CUT

PASTE

Ctrl V

Physical survives

People thought downloading and streaming would take over music sales completely, and that we'd enjoy being free of physical CDs. But the sales of even vinyl records are booming, and it's the same in other areas. Board games are still popular, despite all the digital games around. And the number of high quality print magazines has been growing, too.

A book in the hand ...

Perhaps Amazon realized that although we may enjoy the convenience of e-Books, we don't love them in the same way that we love real books in our hands and on our shelves. We don't even feel that the e-Books we've bought are ours. And it just doesn't seem right that the greatest of all the classics, War and Peace, looks the same on an e-Book screen as a two-page report on traffic problems.

Overall then, while digital has its fans, it's clear that many people still feel the need for something physical that they can touch and feel.

Part A

Performance Capture

Andy Serkis

These days, we hardly think about 'special effects' in films – we're so used to them, they're not actually that special any more! There's the strange, half-human Gollum in The Lord of the Rings, the lifelike Incredible Hulk, and the blue-skinned Na'vi people in Avatar. These were all digitally created, but we believe in them as real characters, and forget the technical tricks involved. But how do they do it? The answer in most cases is Performance Capture.

What is Performance Capture?

Performance Capture is a way of translating a real actor's performance into a digital character. Actors can perform naturally on a digital stage set, and this performance is then 'captured' by cameras and translated into an expressive digital character. If real actors are not involved, digital characters can often seem lifeless and dull.

Tim Doubleday – Face specialist

Tim has worked in Performance Capture for 12 years, and it's his dream job! He can't believe he earns a living working on the type of games and films he loved playing and watching as a teenager!

Tim works for Europe's leading Performance Capture studio, Imaginarium. Based in London, it was founded by the actor Andy Serkis (Gollum in The Lord of the Rings), and Jonathan Cavendish. Imaginarium has worked on many major films, including Star Wars Episode 7. Tim's role is facial supervisor. He's responsible for capturing the subtle movements in the actors' faces, which are used to produce lifelike facial expressions on digital characters.

Part B

The making of Coldplay's Adventure Of A Lifetime video

Tim tells the story of how the music video was made for the hugely successful British rock band, Coldplay.

1 Chris Martin of Coldplay had met Andy Serkis on a plane, and they knew they wanted to do something together – they just weren't sure what. So a date in the studio was booked, and the plan was to just see what happened, and decide where to go from there.

2 We got the Coldplay band members onto our studio set. This has about 50 cameras around it, all linked to a central computer. All our performers wear skin-tight suits with reflective markers on them. The markers are on the most important points of the body for capturing movement. Light from the cameras reflects back from the markers and is picked up by the computer, which records every movement the performers make.

If subtle facial expressions are needed, the performer's face is covered with small marker dots – that's part of my job. The performer wears a head-mounted camera which can capture even tiny movements in the face. We use these to create realistic expressions in the digital character.

3 Andy Serkis is an expert on the way monkeys move – he was in the remake of the film King Kong, and starred in Rise of the Planet of the Apes.

Andy suggested Coldplay try moving like monkeys. The band started to really enjoy themselves, and the story for the video grew out of that. It was a long session – we were there until midnight – but it was great fun!

4 At the end of a session, we have computer data for all the movement in a performance. We use this to create a moving skeleton. The magic is that this can be used to create any kind of digital character – a dog, a dragon, or a pirate. They would all move in exactly the same way Coldplay did, and have the same expressions. Here of course, we created skeletons of monkeys. We then created the bodies of monkeys around the skeletons.

5 At first we tried using natural-looking monkey faces. They didn't have enough individual character though, so we created monkey faces that expressed the band members' characters better.

This basic monkey animation was then handed over to an animation design studio. They put fur on the monkeys' bodies, built a forest in the background, and got the lighting right.

It was a fantastic project to work on, and everyone feels proud to have been a part of it!

MATT FISHER

Hi Andy, just saw your message. So you're off to Amsterdam at the end of the month! Sounds brilliant! Hope you enjoy the concert, and manage to fit in all those galleries. Shame you can't make it to our barbecue, though – was really looking forward to seeing you. Still, not to worry, I reckon we'll have another one later this year.

Sorry not to have been in touch for ages. Been incredibly busy at work, difficult stuff going on in the advertising world (more 'restructuring' in my department – yawn), so I've been ignoring my phone most of the time – don't want them bothering me at home!

So, you doing OK generally? What are you up to when you're not designing the next highest skyscraper? Still doing those triathlons? Don't know how you find the time – or the energy!

Fancy coming and hanging out with us the weekend after Amsterdam? Or the weekend after that? We can discuss. How about a Skype some time soon? Got loads of other stuff to tell you about. Sally's got a new job. Still hotel management, but much better place, and the pay's brilliant – that's why I'm not so worried about losing mine! And we've got a couple of trips planned for September – one is camping in Slovenia. Countryside there looks fab, amazing mountains, lakes, and forests. Can't wait!

Really enjoying this weather! Hope it lasts till the barbecue!

1 12.1 Read and listen to the joke. Why is it funny?

'JUST LEAVE ME ALONE!'

A tramp was sleeping on a park bench. A lady stopped and asked, 'Excuse me! What time is it?' The tramp was annoyed at being woken up. He told her, 'I haven't got a watch, so I don't know the time!' He went back to sleep. A bit later a boy stopped. He also woke the tramp and asked, 'Excuse me! Do you know the time?' The tramp replied angrily, 'I have no idea what the time is. I'm trying to sleep.' By now he was really fed up so he wrote a sign:

I don't know what the time is!

He put it next to him on the bench and went back to sleep. Half an hour later, a policeman was passing. He read the sign, woke the tramp up and said, 'Good evening, sir, it's nine o'clock.'

2 12.2 Listen to the joke again. There are some differences. Complete the lines with the reported conversations you hear.

- The lady asked him what time it _____.
- He told her that he _____ a watch, so he _____ the time.
- The tramp replied angrily that he _____ no idea what the time _____.
- He added that he _____ to sleep.
- The policeman said that it _____ nine o'clock.

The empty desk

1 Joaquín García from Cádiz, Spain didn't show up for work for years. Nobody noticed. Read the article and answer the questions.

- Why did the mayor finally notice García's absence?
- What was García's excuse for not working?
- What had he been doing?
- What did the court do?
- Why do you think the article is called 'The Long Lunch'?

The long lunch

A Spanish civil servant didn't show up for his job at the Cadiz water board for years and nobody noticed.

Joaquín García, a water engineer in the Spanish city of Cádiz, was due to collect a medal for 20 years' loyal service, but nobody could find him. The mayor, Jorge Blas Fernández, asked where he was. He wondered if he was still on the payroll, or whether he had retired or died.

Fernández went to the manager of the water board. The manager told him that he didn't know where García was, and he added that he had not seen him for several years. The mayor was amazed, so he contacted the missing engineer. He asked him what he had been doing for so many years. García refused to answer.

The case went to court. The court asked García to explain his absence. They wanted to know why he had taken his pay despite doing no work. García admitted that he had not kept regular business hours, but said that was because he had been bullied at work and had become depressed. He added that he was making good use of his time at home – he had been studying philosophy, especially the works of Spinoza, the Dutch philosopher.

The court ordered García to pay a fine of €27,000. The mayor told him that he would definitely not receive a medal.

2 12.3 Read and listen to the questions and answers spoken by the people in the article. Who said them? Find the lines that report them. What do you notice about the tenses?

1 'Where is he?'

The mayor asked where he was.

2 'I don't know where he is. I haven't seen him for years.'

3 'Is he still on the payroll? Has he retired or died?'

4 'What have you been doing for so many years?'

5 'Why did you take your pay despite doing no work?'

6 'I didn't keep regular hours because I was bullied and I became depressed.'

7 'I'm making good use of my time. I've been studying philosophy.'

8 'You will not receive a medal.'

3 How are these lines reported in the article?

1 'I won't answer.'

2 'Please, explain your absence.'

3 'You have to pay a fine of €27,000.'

Cernan on the moon during the Apollo 17 mission

CHRISTINA NOBLE OBE

The woman who transformed the lives of 700,000 children

THE GUARDIAN. Joanna Moorhead

Saturday February 13, 2016 12.37 GMT

● Eugene Cernan was the last man to walk on the moon. “The landing,” said the astronaut, “is like being immersed in a sheet of fire, a comet, a shooting star.” Cernan, with crewmates Thomas Stafford and John Young, also travelled faster than any human being in history: Apollo 10 reached 24,791 mph.

His journey to the moon

Born in Chicago in 1934 to a Czech mother and Slovak father, Cernan became a naval aviator before being selected by NASA for astronaut training. He went on to pilot Apollo 10 in May 1969, before finally being selected as commander of Apollo 17, which carried out the most recent moon landing, in December 1972. It was on this voyage that Cernan became the twelfth – and last – man to walk on the moon.

He survived that great adventure, without becoming capsized by it, as Buzz Aldrin was, using alcohol; or retreating from it, as the reclusive Neil Armstrong did. Like many astronauts, he retained a military matter-of-factness: ‘We were there to do a job.’

Occasionally, though, his reticence gave way to a sense of wonder. ‘You can hear yourself breathe inside the suit,’ he said of the long moments of stillness just before the launch. Five hundred thousand people watched the night launch of Apollo 17 from Kennedy Space Center, in Florida, including his then wife, Barbara.

He spent three days on the moon’s surface. ‘People say, “What was it really like up there?” We saw some dazzling, extraordinary things. I mean, not too many people get to see an Earth-rise.’ He pauses for a long time. ‘When I was boarding the lunar module for the last time and I looked at my footprints, I knew I wouldn’t be coming back. That was the one moment when I wanted to stop time.’

After the moon

Unlike the first man to walk on the moon, the late Neil Armstrong, with whom he became friends, Cernan relished the celebrity the moon landing gave him. He made many public appearances. He said, ‘I enjoy meeting people.’

‘If you think going to the moon is hard, try staying at home’

There was a personal cost to that celebrity, and Cernan’s first wife, Barbara, did not enjoy it.

‘If you think going to the moon is hard, try staying at home.’ Their marriage did not survive. The Apollo astronauts were an elite group of alpha males, to which family often took second place. Cernan said, ‘We were so “tunnel vision” about going to the moon, but sooner or later, you’ve got to come to grips with who you are and what’s important in life. All I ever wanted to do was fly. For a long time, there was nothing else.’ Cernan died on 16th January, 2017, surrounded by his family.

● We all have dreams, but Christina Noble, OBE, had a dream that was to transform the lives of 700,000 children. In 1971, at the height of the Vietnam war, Christina went to bed after watching the news and dreamed she could go there and help the children. At the time she was raising three children of her own. She had had little education and knew nothing about Vietnam. She called an aid agency. They listened politely and said they would call back. They never did.

A childhood of appalling suffering

But there was one qualification Christina had for the work. She had had a childhood of appalling suffering. ‘It doesn’t matter whether you’re in a gutter in Dublin or Ho Chi Minh City, it’s still a gutter,’ she says. ‘Every child deserves love and cuddles and kindness and warm food and a bed.’

Born in 1944 in the slums of Dublin (the worst in Europe), Christina was the eldest of eight children. Her mother died when she was ten and she had to become a mother to her younger siblings. ‘I tried to feed them, I tried to get them to school. I’d go to the market at 4 a.m. to get oranges and cabbages.’

It was hopeless, made impossible because her father was an alcoholic. ‘I’d go from pub to pub looking for him. When I found him I’d say, “come home, Daddy!”’

Eventually, someone reported the family to the authorities. ‘We were taken away,’ says Christina. ‘We were all screaming, “Daddy, Daddy, please don’t let them take us. We’ll be good, we’ll go to school.” I remember him shouting back: “Your mammy is dead and I can’t look after you. It’s for the best.”’

The children were put into separate institutions. Christina was told all her siblings had died and it was many years before she was reunited with them.

‘Mamma Tina’

But Christina never forgot her dream. In 1989, her children now grown up, she simply got on a plane to Vietnam, checked into a hotel and started talking to street children. When she saw kids who were dirty, hungry, and afraid, she smuggled them into her hotel room, and gave them a bath and food. They called her ‘Mamma Tina’.

Eventually, in 1991, she got two oil executives to donate $10,000, and she set up the Christina Noble Foundation. Based in Vietnam and Mongolia, it now has offices in 14 countries around the world, and 700,000 children have been helped to a better life.

The pain has never left

It’s impossible to recover fully from a childhood as horrific as Christina’s. The pain has never left her, and she doesn’t want it to.

‘The most important thing in life is remembering that we’re all the same, we’re all human beings,’ she says. ‘I learned in the slums of Dublin how to help a child in the slums of Vietnam.’

1 I left my phone on the bus! I'm lost without it. So many meetings and no decisions made!	I know. It's all talk and no action. Come on! It's not the end of the world.
2 I can't make him see that there's a problem. I was about to text you, and you texted me.	Yes, it's like banging your head against a brick wall. Great minds think alike.
3 I don't know why you like Kim. She's strange. Pat is full of good, practical ideas.	Yes, she certainly has both feet on the ground. Well, it takes all sorts to make a world.
4 I've got ten exams in the next two weeks. I've got three months' holiday!	Rather you than me. It's all right for some.
5 The report doesn't have to be sent in today. I'm amazed. The garden looks great now.	What! And I just bust a gut to get it done. Thanks – but it's all in a day's work.
6 That lecture was awful. I was bored to death. I reversed into a wall and broke a headlight.	Never mind. It could have been worse. You can say that again. I fell asleep.
7 I wonder if their marriage will last. He loves nothing more than evenings at home.	Only time will tell. Ah, he's a man after my own heart.
8 Our neighbours are extreme right-wing. I lent Peter £100, and he never paid me back.	That's awful, but you live and learn. Oh, well. Live and let live. That's what I say.

Unit 1

1.6 My favourite things

T = Tom S = Sally

- S So Tom, what's on your list? Griff, that's a strange name! Who's Griff? Why is he important to you?
- T Well, he's my best mate. He was the very first person I met at secondary school, when I was 11. I knew nobody and he knew nobody, so we just fell on each other, became best friends and ... er, well, we still are.
- S And Griff's his real name?
- T No. His name's actually David Griffiths, but there were so many Davids in our class, he was always called Griff. He still is. Everyone calls him that.
- S I see. So now – your favourite city or town? Where's that?
- T That's easy – definitely New York. My grandparents took me and my brother Jack there for four days when I was 14 and Jack was 16. It was the best holiday ever for me – we stayed in a hotel overlooking Central Park. We went ice-skating and we flew over the city in a helicopter. We saw everything – it was amazing. I'd love to work in New York.
- S Yeah, I think New York's a favourite for many people. What about a memorable meal? Where was that?
- T Actually – that was in New York. We went to Michael Jordan's Restaurant in Grand Central Station. Have you heard of it?
- S What? Grand Central? Of cour—
- T No, no – not the station, the restaurant, Michael Jordan's. I think it's quite famous.
- S I don't know it. What kind of restaurant is it?
- T It's a steak house – the steak is just the best. And you sit high up. It's so exciting. You can eat and watch all these New Yorkers rushing to catch their trains.
- S Sounds great! So finally. Do you have a treasured possession?
- T I'm not sure I do have a treasured possession – well there's my iPhone, of course – I certainly couldn't live without that. But other than that ... er, oh, I suppose it's the ship in a bottle that my great grandpa gave me just before he died. He said it was very special to him, but I'm not sure why – he was too old to explain it clearly.
- S Ah that's a shame. Now, do you want to hear about my favourite things?
- T Yeah ...

1.7 What are you like?

- 1 Life just becomes more and more complicated. All this new technology – as soon as I get used to something, it changes. What is the world coming to?
- 2 I spent the whole weekend trying to teach my five-year-old nephew how to ride a bike. Bless him! He fell time and time again, but we kept going and finally he was away!
- 3 It's amazing! Richard can never find his wallet when it's his turn to pay!
- 4 You go, I don't really want to. I'm not very good in large groups. I never know what to talk about and pubs are so noisy.
- 5 He has his future all planned out. He says he'll be a millionaire by the time he's 40.

1.9 My closest relative

Tess I think the person that I'm probably closest to is my sister, Charlotte, or Charlie as everyone calls her. We're very different – she drives me crazy sometimes and we have terrible rows, but I know we'll always be there for each other in the end. Erm, one thing I love about her is her sunny personality. She's so sociable – not shy like me. She's always cheerful and full of fun – people love her, they always want to be her friend. Me, I'm just her boring baby sister. But perhaps what I like best about her is the way she's, so honest about herself – she says her big problem is that she can't sit still. She says she'd like to be like me and be happy just sitting reading or watching a film – just relaxing really. I'm good at that!

Simon In my family, I think I'm closest to my granddad. My dad, I don't really get on with. We don't really see eye to eye about anything, but fortunately he's away on business most of the time. I think he'd like me better if I was good at sport, ... er football or rugby or something, any sport – but I'm not. What I like about granddad is that we have the same interests, erm ... we both love wildlife – nature, plants, and animals and things. We often go walking together in the countryside and sometimes in my school holidays we go camping. I love that, even in the rain. I think emotionally I'm closer to him than I am to both my parents, erm ... you see my mum also has a high-powered job and she travels a lot. I'm an only child, so I think I'd be lonely without my granddad. I love him, my friends love him, too. He's always so interested in what they're doing. He's young at heart, my granddad.

Ellie The person I'm closest to in my family is definitely my mum. Everyone loves my mum. She's the kind of person you can talk to about anything. She's very understanding, especially now I have a baby of my own. She's a great help with baby George, but doesn't throw too much advice at me – if you know what I mean. At the moment, we spend a lot of time together because I'm not back at work. We go for walks with the baby – we go shopping together, we like the same kind of clothes. She's pretty cool, my mum, not old-fashioned at all. We have our ups and downs of course, ... er a few years ago I had a tattoo, a butterfly, done on my shoulder and she didn't like that at all. She still goes on about it, but most of the time we get on very well indeed.

Nick I'm closest to my twin brother, Chris. We're not identical twins, but we have a lot of things in common – we follow the same football team, Arsenal, ... er we like the same sort of music, 'specially house music and we mainly have the same friends. But I suppose there are more differences than similarities – I'm into all things history and politics, and Chris loves adventure and travel. Also our personalities are very different. Er, I'm like my mum – calm and easy-going. Chris, he's like my dad – he can be moody and bad-tempered. Those two, Dad and Chris, often fight like cat and dog. I'm the referee! It's not a role I like. Chris has just gone travelling in south-east Asia. He's in South Korea at the moment, in Seoul. I miss him a lot. I think, as twins, we're closer than most brothers and sisters – we're different, but I trust him like I trust no one else – even my mum.

N = Nick D = Denisa M = Miguel

D Hi, Nick! Have you been shopping?

N Yes, I have. I'm going to cook fish pie for you two tonight. Did you have a good day at college?

M No.

D Well, I did. We were practising giving presentations.

N Oh, sounds interesting. Was that not useful for you, Miguel?

M No.

N Why? Do you never have to give presentations at work?

M No.

D I do. That's why I need to improve my English.

N Well, it's definitely improving!

M Have you noticed my English is better?

N Er, yes, I have. And it'll get better the longer you're here.

2.5 Short answers

D Well, I did. We were practising giving presentations.

M No, it wasn't really. It's not something I need to practise.

N Why? Do you never have to give presentations at work?

M No, I don't. Well, not in English anyway – sometimes I have to give them in Spanish.

D I do. That's why I need to improve my English.

2.8 A world in one family – Nicolas

I So, Nicolas, how old are you?

N I'm 21.

I And you have an interesting background – what nationality are you?

N Well, I'm British – I was born here and I've got a British passport.

I And is that the same for your sister?

N Yeah, Sara was born here, too.

I But your parents, what nationality are they?

N Well my father's Brazilian, and my mum's German, but they've both lived in the UK for 30 years.

I And how did they meet? Was that here in the UK?

N Yes. It's a funny story actually...

I Go on then!

N Well, ... you should probably ask my mother about it...

I OK, I will! What about languages? Your parents must speak very good English?

N Yeah, ... both of them had good English when they came here, and it's pretty perfect now. But I do get to correct them sometimes!

I So what languages are spoken in your family?

N Well my dad speaks Portuguese as well as English, obviously. My mum's father's German and her mother's Brazilian, so ... she speaks German and Portuguese fluently. And she studied English at university.

I Wow! So are you and your sister both bilingual? Or trilingual?

N Er, you could say Sara's trilingual. I'm sort of bilingual – my dad didn't make as much effort to speak Portuguese with me, and I'm not really fluent in it.

I And what's it like growing up in England with a Brazilian father and a German mother?

N It's been ... fine. I didn't think about my nationality much when I was young. The first time I remember it being an issue was at secondary school, when there was a World Cup, and my classmates said I had to choose which country to support, England, Germany, or Brazil.

I So, which was it?

N I said I wanted to support all three – good job really, 'cos England and Brazil both got knocked out in the quarter-finals!

I Ah, it pays to be multinational sometimes! So, has your background affected your career choice?

N I guess so. I'm studying modern languages at university – Italian and German.

I Oh, another new language!

N Yes! I love Italian, and it's pretty similar to Portuguese.

I And studying German must be dead easy for you!

N Er, ... in some ways, but writing in German is still difficult for me sometimes.

I And what are you hoping to do in the future?

N Er, good question. I'm not sure yet. But I want to use my languages, hopefully in a job where I can travel or live abroad for a while.

2.9 A world in one family – Elke

I Elke, you're German, aren't you?

E Yes – I'm actually half German and half Brazilian, but I was born and grew up in Düsseldorf.

I And how long have you lived here in Cambridge?

E Er... 31 years.

I How did that happen?

E Er, I came to the university as a postgraduate, and ... well, I met my husband, Felipe. We met at a student party...

I Nicolas tells me it's a good story!

E Yes, [laughs]... I was standing near two men, it was Felipe and his Brazilian friend, Lucas and ... well, I look German, or maybe English, not particularly Brazilian, so, after looking over at me, Felipe thought it was fine for him to say to Lucas, quite loudly in Portuguese, 'Oooh! She is cute! I'd like to ask her out!'

I Oh no!!

E Oh yes! He looked horrified and blushed like mad when I shouted over in Portuguese, 'Well, you're not so bad yourself, so why don't you?!' But then we laughed about it and spent the evening together... and ... well, here we still are!

I What made you decide to stay here?

E Felipe got a job at the university, and I found a job soon after. It avoids deciding which of your countries to live in if you live in a third one!

I True! Now, I wondered – did you choose Sara and Nicholas' names because they're international?

E Yes, they're common in all the countries we belong to.

I And would you say that Sara and Nicholas are both trilingual?

E Sara is – she's comfortable in German, Portuguese, or English. She often switches languages without even noticing!

I Now, Nicolas said his dad didn't make as much effort to speak Portuguese to him.

E Oh, that's not true! We introduced it a bit later, but Felipe always used it with him – it's just that Nicolas kept replying in English!

I Ah! Well, I know Nicolas is studying languages ... has Sara's background influenced her career?

E Yes, she's a consultant for British companies doing business in Brazil, and she's often out there. I think she'll end up living there, actually.

I And what do you think are the pros and cons of bringing up children in a different culture to your own?

E I think it's a great opportunity to take the best of both cultures. People identify too much with just their own language and culture. But I do sometimes worry that my children don't feel like they really belong anywhere. I wonder whether it's possible to feel 100% English when your parents aren't English?

2.12 Everyday situations

1 A Just a trim, please.

B OK. How much do you want off? This much?

2 A No, thanks, I'm just looking.

B Well, just call me if you do need any help.

B Oh, but you really must try the other dessert!

A Honestly, I'd love to, but I really couldn't manage it!

Unit 3

3.2 How I stay calm

1 Gary Rudd When I watch my team, my heart's racing, but I try to keep calm and not shout too much. I feel a huge responsibility for the club. And I have worries – injured players, referees I don't agree with, also I know that the manager is always blamed when the team loses – that's very stressful. The way I stay calm is to leave my work at work. I never watch the 24-hour sports channels, I don't go on social media and read what people say on Twitter or Facebook. I don't even talk to my family about it, and that's difficult when I'm down after a really bad game. Oh – and I do DIY around the house – I'm decorating the kitchen at the moment.

2 Joan Bevan I had the most fantastic teachers when I was at school. I think that's why I feel so much stress and worry in this job – I believe that a good school makes a huge difference to the lives of young people. We have 1,100 students here and I have a personal responsibility for each one of them. So I arrive early to school every morning to give myself time to just sit and think quietly. The most stressful situation is when angry parents show up. I try to stay calm – the minute you shout, people don't listen. Also, I run. I'm training for the Great Welsh Marathon at the moment, so I run eight miles, three nights a week. And that's a great help.

3 Kyle Cooper What I do, is install underwater gas and oil wells. I work 300 kilometres north of Shetland in Scotland. The whole job is stressful, from the helicopter ride to the ship to when I get into a 2.5 metre by 7 metre chamber for a month. I'm in there with 11 other divers. We work in teams of three. We go up and down in a kind of diving bell, which is lowered to 20 metres above the sea bed and we work for six hours in the pitch black. It's tiring, very tiring, but I've been doing it for 20 years and I still love it. Usually I work one month and then have two months off. Even when I'm not working, I love the sea – it calms me. You won't believe it, but sailing is my favourite pastime, I love sailing! I'm actually building my own boat at the moment.

4 Dr Bonnie Baxter I'm an A&E doctor in a busy city centre hospital, we see about 60,000 patients a year. It's stressful most of the time, but especially weekends – we see twice as many patients at weekends. I understand their distress when they say, 'How long do I have to wait?', 'When will I be seen?' But I can't often give them an answer. The very nature of A&E is that it is unpredictable for both doctors and patients. I've now been working here almost three years. What helps me is having people around who share the stresses of the day – that and my knitting – in my few free moments I knit. I'm making a little blue jacket for my sister's baby – he'll probably be too big for it by the time I finish!

3.3 An interview with Gary Rudd

I = Interviewer GR = Gary Rudd

I So, Gary, how do you get a balance between work and home life?

GR Well, it's tricky, but I've been married for ten years and I've been doing this job for three years and very fortunately my lovely wife understands how stressful it is. Also, it helps that we live near my work – we have a nice house not far from the football ground.

I Do you have any children?

GR We have two kids; twin daughters. Thank goodness they both love football! They often come to watch the matches, but I never seem to have time to do dad-type things with them. My job is so time-consuming – I usually work six days out of seven and always at weekends.

I Don't you like your job?

GR Don't get me wrong. I love my job – it's challenging and exciting, I never know what's going to happen. I like training the lads, they're great guys. But it's often lonely. I enjoyed all my years as a player. I loved all the dressing-room chat and socializing after the game – now I'm not invited to join them.

I Do you and your wife relax at all?

GR Not much! We don't have a social life these days. I try to switch off when I get home and do stuff round the house, but it's difficult. I like doing DIY, but I rarely finish anything – I'm painting the kitchen at the moment, I've been doing it for weeks and it's not finished yet.

I What does your wife think about that?

GR Ah – she's a very patient lady and she has lots of interests of her own, but ...

I How long are you going to stay as manager?

GR I don't have an answer to that. I want to leave when the team are doing well. I have no idea when that will be. I'm hoping before my marriage ends – don't worry ... I'm joking!

3.5 First day in a new job

S = Sarah J = Josh

S Gosh! I don't know anybody! Can you help me? Who are all these people?

J Well, let's see – that's Nigel. He's sitting at the top of the table reading a report or something.

S He's the one wearing the bright blue tie, right?

J Yeah, that's it.

S And what does he do?

J Ah, he's the CEO – the man in charge. He runs the show!

S The big boss, in other words.

J Uh huh. Some days he shouts a lot, but he listens as well. Er, then there's Edward. He's wearing a light grey suit. He's standing in front of the window chatting to Helena. Edward's the sales director – he's going to China soon. He's charming. He always has a nice word to say to everyone. Er, Helena's drinking a coffee. She's wearing a lovely green jacket and cream silk scarf – she always dresses beautifully.

S I can see that and Helena is the ... ?

J Helena's the accountant. Money, money, money. Very bright, very quick.

S Ah, OK. And who's that sitting down, talking on her phone?

J In the pink jumper?

S Yeah.

J That's Jenny, the human resources manager, HR manager. She looks after all the personnel. She's a sweetheart. Everyone loves her. Then opposite her is Matthew. He's the IT manager. He's only working here for a few months. He's from our New York office. I don't really know him very well.

S Is he the guy working on his laptop in the striped shirt?

J That's him – striped shirt, no tie. He knows everything about technology. He's preparing to give a presentation. And finally, that's Christina standing behind Nigel. She's his PA. She ...

S Sorry. Who was that?

J Ah, Christina – behind Nigel. She's his personal assistant. She organizes his diary and ... er the whole of his life actually, but she helps us, too. We, we couldn't cope without her. She runs the whole place. Can you see the huge, dangly earrings she's wearing? She always wears interesting earrings – it's her 'thing'.

S Good for her! Right. Thanks Josh – I hope I can remember all that!

J Well, they're a very nice crowd. Let me introduce you. Hey everyone – this is Sarah, our new marketing manager.

3.7 What do they do for a living?

1 Steph There's never a quiet or dull moment in my job. You need eyes at the back of your head when you're looking after a bunch of three-year-olds, they are constantly on the move! My favourite time of the day is storytime because I get to sit down for 15 minutes. Storytime is my one moment of calm in the day.

2 Will I actually like getting up so early in the morning. In this job you never get to lie in ... and at the moment I'm up in the night as well cause we're lambing. Quite a few of the sheep have problems lambing, especially if it's twins. I had triplets last night – stressful, but they were all fine.

3 Sebastian I love working in such a fast-moving environment and in a big city – I'm excited by it. It suits me because I've always been fascinated by numbers, making money disappear and reappear is thrilling to me. I'm a workaholic, I work 16 hours a day. The downside is living in fear of losing your job – it can happen at any time. Lots of my friends have. That's why we deserve the money we earn.

4 Mansel I'm about to retire. Not long ago we could retire at 55 or 60, but now it's 65. I think people believe it's a more glamorous job than it actually is. You go all over the world, but you don't really know anywhere. The greatest thrill in my career was when I flew Concorde – I did the London/Barbados run. Now my wife and I are going to have a proper holiday there.

3.9 Our work-life balance

Lucinda Free time – what's that?! Balancing work and ... er life – I don't think I do that very well. I run an advertising agency – and what with my family and the daily commute to work, life is pretty full on. I am trying to do more non-work stuff, so I've just started tennis lessons. I go to the local tennis club on Sunday mornings, but, to be honest, some Sundays I find it too difficult to get up ... I can't drag myself out of bed. I've bought all the kit – expensive racket, shorts and trainers and stuff, so I do try to make the effort – 'specially when my son starts shouting at me to get up. Actually that's what happens most Sundays. Oh ... and I do yoga occasionally – every few weeks when I start feeling really stressed – all that meditation helps a lot.

Barney It's not fair ... we get so much homework – every night and weekends and the bit of the weekend that's free I have tennis lessons. I've been having tennis lessons forever, every Saturday morning. I know I'm good at tennis and I kind of like it ... only thing is it's not what I like most. I like football ... I like it a lot. I play for a local club for 9 to 12 year olds. We're called the Berko Raiders and ... er well ... we're rubbish really, I mean really rubbish, we never win! But I still like it more than tennis. It's just not fair ... mum has tennis lessons too, but most times she misses it 'cos she's still asleep.

Actually, for me, absolutely best of all are my computer games, football ones of course – I play FIFA and a fantastic American football game called Madden 16, oh ... and d'you know Forza? That's not football, it's a racing car game. It's really my dad's. He loves it and he can play it when he wants, but they, my mum and dad, only let me use my iPad after I've done my homework. It's not fair.

Justin We're a busy, busy family. I'm a marketing manager, I'm well paid, but I've reached a stage in my life where I've realized work isn't everything – you know, 'work to live' don't 'live to work'. Er, I have a health app on my phone – it shows me how many steps I walk and how many flights of stairs I climb in a day. You have to aim for at least 10,000 steps – I'm your classic London commuter, but I never use escalators or lifts on the way to work, I walk as much as I can – but still, sometimes, at the end of the day I have to walk up and down the stairs at home to get my 10,000 steps. I do other things too – I play squash on a Tuesday evening and I go running on a Sunday before I take Barney to his football (sigh) and watch miserably as his team loses again. He doesn't seem to mind – football is king to him in whatever form. I don't much like the football games on the computer, but I do like a racing car game, er Forza, it's called, but my fave is a game called 'Elite' – I think it's because it's, it's like a game I played when I was ten – it's basically like Star Trek. I always find time for that. Oh yes ... and, er, once a year, in September, I go on a walking tour with three other guys, in the Alps – it's exhausting, but I love the feeling after you've done it. I can even face the commute.

3.12 Listen and compare

- A Who do you work for?
B Siemens. I've been with them for four years. They're a good company. How about you?
- A Do you enjoy your work?
B Yes, I do. It's quite hard, very challenging, but I like the challenge. What about you? Do you like your job?
- A Where do you come from?
B I was born in Montreal, and I've lived there all my life near my parents. I'd like to live abroad some time.
- A Have you been to Chicago?
B No, I haven't, but I'd love to. I've heard it's one of the most amazing cities in the world. Have you been there?
- A This town's very exciting, isn't it?
B Really? Do you think so? There isn't very much to do. I get so bored here. What do you find to do?
- A What do you do when you're not working?
B Well, I like horse riding, and I play squash. And I love music, so I often go to concerts. What about you?
- A The weather's amazing at the moment, isn't it?
B Yes, it's so mild. We haven't had any really cold weather at all. Have you heard the weather forecast for the weekend? It's supposed to be good, isn't it?
- A Are you having a holiday this year?
B Yes, I'm going to Mexico with some friends. I haven't been there before, so I'm really looking forward to it. Are you going away?
- A What's your favourite TV programme?
B I like a lot – documentaries, quiz shows, and the news. I suppose I like everything. I'm quite a TV addict. Do you watch much TV?

Unit 4

4.2 I didn't do much

- Chris I didn't do much – just made myself something to eat, watched telly for a bit, and then bed by ten – I had an early night. I was asleep by eleven. BOR-ing!
- Sarah I went to my yoga class – it does me good after a day's work – then some of us went for a drink. I got home about nine and did a bit of online shopping ... er just supermarket stuff, and that was it.
- Jane I went to see a film with a couple of friends, the latest James Bond ... er it wasn't really my kind of thing – I liked the previous one better. Then I missed my train, so I didn't get home till after midnight. Not the best of nights for me!
- Tom Well – that's easy – what I do every night – studied 'til after midnight. I even took my laptop to bed. I've got a major exam coming up. Oh boy! I'm going to be out every night when it's all over.

4.3 How Shakespeare caused an air crash

On October 4, 1960, a Lockheed Electra plane was taking off from Boston Airport in the US when a flock of about 20,000 starlings suddenly flew into its path.

The plane crashed into the sea and 62 people were killed. The birds had choked the engines of the plane and brought it down. Tragically, only 19 people survived.

So ... what is the link to Shakespeare?

The starling is not a species of bird that's native to North America. Starlings were introduced in 1890 by a New Yorker called Eugene Schieffelin. Schieffelin was not only interested in birds, he was obsessed with Shakespeare. He'd made a list of all the songbirds mentioned in Shakespeare's plays and poetry and he wanted to introduce these birds to Central Park in New York. This he did, but some birds, such as thrushes and blackbirds, found it difficult to survive. Others, however, particularly the starlings thrived, and by the 1940s they had spread across America from California to Alaska. They formed gigantic flocks of up to a million birds and many native species, such as bluebirds and woodpeckers, were driven out. Schieffelin's romantic gesture not only caused an air crash, but an ecological disaster, too.

So where does Shakespeare mention starlings?

In all of his 37 plays and 154 poems there is only one brief reference, and that's in Henry IV Part One.

4.11 Once upon a time ...

I = Ian R = Richard

- I Why is this your favourite story?
 R I think it's because I saw it on stage first. I was seven and it was the first time I'd been to the theatre. I was fascinated by the flying and the magic. And it was frightening too, I was terrified of the pirates and Captain Hook ... but I was at that age when you love being scared!
- I But Captain Hook was funny, he wasn't scary.
 R Well, he was scary to me ... I really believed his hand was a hook.
- I Hadn't his hand been eaten by a crocodile?
 R Yes, ... and the crocodile had swallowed a clock, so before you saw it you heard this tick-tock, tick-tock ... and all the kids in the audience screamed to Captain Hook: 'He's behind you!' 'He's behind you!' ... brilliant stuff!
- I Was Captain Hook your favourite character?
 R Oh no, no! Peter was, of course. I loved the idea of never growing up. It's brilliant ... and being able to fly ... just opening your bedroom window and soaring over London to a country called Neverland – magical.
- I I think a lot of people dream of flying. Er ... didn't Peter have this really naughty fairy? What was her name again?
 R Tinkerbell ... I liked her. She was so cheeky, really rude, and she hated Wendy ... remember Wendy? Tinkerbell was jealous because Peter loved Wendy. Actually I wasn't too keen on Wendy either ... or her brothers
- I John and Michael.
 R Yeah, that's right. I thought being able to fly to Neverland was wasted on them and Wendy. .. she was a bit soppy.
- I And the dog ... what about the dog?
 R Nana! Oh I loved Nana! Poor dog. She was looking after the children when Peter taught them to fly and took them away. D'you know, I read the story now to my own kids and they love it just as much as I did. Actually, I think I understand it more as a grown up.
- I Why's that?
 R Well, I think growing up is quite a scary thing to do. Childhood is safe ... no responsibility, being an adult is tough. I think a lot of people would like to stay young forever.

I True. Some people never grow up, do they?
I suppose that's why it's called Neverland.

B = Beth A = Anna

B I think I remember this story, I think my dad read it to me at bedtime.

A My dad read it to me too and I've just read it to my four-year-old daughter. It was my favourite when I was little, and now it's her favourite, too. Did you like it when you were a child?

B Well, I used to love any story with princes and princesses who lived happily ever after.

A But actually this is a dark story – it's really sad and ... it's cruel and the wicked witch is really wicked.

B Wasn't it about a married couple who were longing for a baby?

A That's right they ...

B ... and then when they finally had a baby a wicked witch whisked it away.

A Yeah, but only because the wife's husband had stolen salad stuff from the witch's garden.

B I'd forgotten that.

A Yeah, the wife craved lettuce, presumably because she was pregnant, and the husband was caught stealing it, so the witch took the baby, a girl, and when she became 16 locked her up at the top of a tower without any door or any stairs.

B So how did the witch get her into the tower in the first place?

A You're too logical ... don't ask difficult questions. Anyway, the girl had beautiful, thick, long ... very long, blonde hair and she used to throw it out of the window so ...

B So there was a window!

A Yeah, one window ... so the witch used to call 'Rapunzel, Rapunzel let down your hair!' and then climb up the hair to the girl.

B Wow!

A Then one day ...

B I know ... one day, a handsome prince came riding by on a white horse and saved the girl and she became a princess and they lived happily ever after.

A No! You're going too fast. The witch discovered the prince and threw him out of the window – he didn't die, but he was blinded and spent years wandering around.

B What about the girl?

A The witch took her to a desert and finally the prince heard her singing ... they met and her tears fell on his eyes and ...

B Don't tell me – he could see again and they went off together to his castle, got married, and lived happily ever after!

A You got it!

Unit 5

5.2 Breaking the rules

Conversation 1

A I can't believe it! We had to pay a fine for taking our kids on holiday in school-term time!

B Well, they're trying to put a stop to it. And to be honest, I don't think parents should make their kids miss school for a holiday.

A That's because you haven't got kids. You don't have to pay the ridiculous prices they charge for flights during school holidays.

B You don't need to go abroad on holiday. You should take them somewhere in this country.

A Oh yeah. Very relaxing, trying to keep three kids happy when it's cold and raining.

Conversation 2

A Do you see those two men over there?

B Yeah, what about them?

A They're smoking. They shouldn't be smoking in here.

B Well, they are standing near the door.

A It doesn't matter. You're not allowed to smoke anywhere in a public building – everyone knows that. Do you think I should tell them to stop?

B No, you mustn't get involved. They'll probably get all aggressive about it. Just ignore them.

A No, we can't just sit here and do nothing. I think someone has to say something. Excuse me ...

Conversation 3

A What an unpleasant man!

B Well you did nearly walk into him! I've told you before – you've got to stop texting when you're walking along the road.

A I can text wherever I want to, thank you!

B No, he had every right to tell you to watch where you're going. You can't walk along like that with your head down, expecting everyone else to walk around you.

A Well he didn't need to be quite so rude!

B I think you're the one who's being rude. If you must text while you're out shopping, you should stop somewhere and get out of everyone's way.

A Oh come on, everyone does it! You can't stop every time you want to look at your phone!

5.4 Rules for life

1 Ellie Oh, I love this quote so much! I think about it every time I'm on the dance floor! It's definitely the best way to have a good time! And really, other people aren't that interested in how I'm dancing, are they? They're all worrying about how well they're dancing! Now, ... the bit about loving ... mmm, that's easier said than done! It's a lovely idea, but unfortunately human beings do have a very long memory for being hurt! And ... the singing bit ... I can do that, no problem... in the shower! I know my family can hear me singing, but ... they never complain – probably 'cos they're even worse singers than I am!

2 Dan It makes me smile, that quote. I'd heard it before actually, as a joke, about this man, Michael. He's very religious, but ... he's always moaning while he's praying to God, and complaining that his prayers are never answered. He keeps saying, 'Look God, you don't have to answer all my prayers, but how about just this one thing? I mean, it happens to someone every week, so why can't it be me?' After years of this, God finally loses his patience and speaks to the man. 'Michael, you've got to help me out here... Just buy a ticket, will you?!' It's good, because it shows that, when we moan about our lives, and say we're fed up with the way things are, we can't just sit and wait for new opportunities to come to us. We've got to do our bit, too.

3 Amanda Oh, I know that one – it's a quote from Kierkegaard, the philosopher. I kind of hate it actually, because it's one of the things I find most difficult about life. I mean, ... you learn lessons from what you've done wrong, but you can't go back and do it again, and do it better. So, yes, as he says, we have to live life forwards – but, I'm sorry, sometimes I can't help desperately wishing I could go back and do something again, ... and get it all right!

4 Mark Both of these quotes really make me laugh! That one is actually true, ... if I see that the remote is on the other armchair, I will sometimes stay with a programme longer, and I might then change my mind about switching over! And it says something about modern life ... the amount of choice we have, and how easy it is to keep switching from one thing to another. I'm just ancient enough to remember when there were only three or four TV channels, and you had to walk over to the TV to change them – so you didn't very often! And the Internet doesn't help – 'oh, I'm bored with this article, click, here's something else ... mmmm, I'm getting bored again ... click! I think this other quote is my favourite, though ... it's hilarious. Things do seem to go a certain way on different days, don't they? And I'm certainly having a statue day today!

5.5 have got to

- A Is your mum away?
B Yeah, so Dad's got to do all the cooking.
- A Where's my phone? I've got to call Jim.
B It's where you left it, on the table.
- A Can I go out now, Mum?
B No, you've got to do your homework first.
- A Have some more tea.
B Thanks, but I've got to go now.

5.6

Part 3

One of the students raised her hand.

'Yes, Kirsty?'

'What about the beer? What does that represent?'

'Ah, I'm glad you picked up on that,' said the professor, smiling. 'That's just to show that no matter how full your life seems, you can always find space for a drink with some friends.'

5.11 Requests and offers

- A Hi, it's me again. I've just realized I've got a doctor's appointment at 11.00 tomorrow morning. Could we possibly meet at 12.00 instead?
B Er, no problem. I could meet you for a working lunch if that's better.
A That would be great!
B OK, let's make it 12.30, then, in the canteen.
- A Would you mind if we didn't go out to eat tonight? I'd really like to watch the football live.
B No, that's fine. Would you like me to get a takeaway?
A Oh, that'd be amazing!
B OK, I'll get an Indian, and I might just watch some of the match with you.
- A So, how's my favourite grandson? How's school?
B It's OK ... I'm ... erm, doing fine.
A Liam, would you mind not texting while I'm talking to you? It's very rude!
B Oh, really sorry Gran, it was something really important. I'll put it away now.
- A I hope you've enjoyed your stay with us.
B Yes, we have. The room was lovely, with such a great view!
A Good. Now, can I get you a taxi?
B No, thanks. Our friends have come to give us a lift to the airport.

6.2 Switching saddles

- A Sorry, did you say you're going to the races tomorrow?! Since when have you been a horse racing fan?!
- B Well, it's more that I've always been a fan of Victoria Pendleton. She's riding in a big race tomorrow.
- A But she's a cyclist!
- B Well, yes, she was. She won Olympic gold in Beijing and London. She was amazing, but in fact she didn't enjoy competitive cycling that much, so she retired, and she's a jockey now.
- A Really? I didn't know that. How long has she been a jockey?
- B She's only been in a few races so far, but she's been training hard for over a year. She'd never sat on a horse before that, though.
- A Wow, that's incredible!
- B It is! For the last year she's been taking part in a challenge called Switching Saddles, to see if she can ride in a top jump race within a year. She's been trained by the best people right from the start, of course.
- A It's still a huge challenge for a beginner, though. And those jumps always look scary to me. Has she had any falls?
- B Oh yeah, she's fallen off a few times in training, and she came off in one of her first races. But she's fallen in love with horse riding completely, and I'm hoping to see her win her first big race tomorrow – or at least stay on!
- A Brilliant! Good luck to her!

6.4 Ann Daniels – polar explorer

- SB Ann, there are great adventures to be had, in many different kinds of environments; forests, deserts, mountains. What is it that attracts you to the potential, utter misery of the poles?
- AD Well, if I'm honest, it was actually just an opportunity that came my way, when I saw a newspaper advert that asked for applications to go to the North Pole, and I'm a great believer in taking up opportunities, so I applied and I found myself in the Arctic. Having got to the Arctic, I loved the place. It blew my mind away. You're walking on a crystal ice that moves, it makes sound, it groans. Erm, yes, it's trying to kill you most of the time, but it feels like a living beast, nature at its rawest, and I'd never experienced anything like that before, and I was hooked from day one.

- SB All I'm getting from you now is, is positivity, and optimism, and joy, but I know for an absolute fact that it isn't always like that.
- AD Most of the time it's not. Most of the time you're in agony, you're pulling a sled, and you're erm ... On our ... er South ... er North Pole expedition in 2002, it was an 80-day expedition, on day 37 we had gone just 69 miles of the 500 miles – that's how slow we'd gone, barely two and a bit miles a day. Every inch of our bodies screamed with pain. But you know, the sense of achievement really overcomes the horror, and like anything in life, when we've finished and we've got through it, we take away the beauty and the greatness and the joy, not the pain and the horror, as I would imagine there would never be more than one child born if we didn't take the beauty away from the great experiences of life.
- SB It's interesting you say that actually, Ranulph Fiennes talks about the fact that to be an explorer, and particularly a polar explorer, all you really need is a terrible memory, and that actually, you know, all that you take away with you, as you're saying really, the, those trans ... transcendent moments, and you forget about all of the chafing, and the blisters, and the gangrene.

- SB You had a very normal childhood and upbringing?
- AD Yeah, I was born ... er in the city of Bradford, and that's quite an industrial city, erm, and from working class parents, where we were expected to leave school, I left at 15, er just before my 16th birthday, and then we had to go get a job and bring income into the house. That's what we did, and that's what I did, and, as a child I'd four older brothers, so we were always getting up to mischief, but as soon as I grew up, I took a normal job, I was in a bank, erm, and I thought I would have children. The height of my ambition was to go back to the bank and, and progress to be a manager, and that was all my expectations were, up until I saw a newspaper advert, and it changed my whole world and perception and, and life.
- SB Legendary climber, Joe Simpson, was, like you, the last of five children, and he talks about how, as a child you were always seeking to find your niche, in a family and in life. And as the fifth, all of those niches have already been taken, and you have to work even harder to try and impose your character, and he says that that's pretty much fundamental to how he got into becoming an explorer and adventurer and a climber. Do you think that had any kind of er, formative part in, in your life?
- AD Absolutely, but I would say possibly slightly different in, I was the fifth, but I was the only girl, so I had four brothers, so my psyche was, I never felt I was good enough, or big enough, or strong enough, 'cos I've got these boys who were running around and I come from the kind of background where girls really weren't expected to be boys, and so I found that I was fighting, because I wanted to be one of them, I wanted to be able to go and play football, and climb the trees, and so I did, and you can guarantee if my older brother said 'there's a really high tree there, who's gonna do it?', I'd be up there first, not because I could or because I wanted to, because I wanted to prove myself to them, and just through doing that I guess I became more daring, took more risks, er, and then found the joy of getting to the top of the tree, and wow, look what I've done! Especially if they couldn't do it, that was even better, so certainly I think being the last, you're always trying to prove yourself to your older siblings.

SB What do you think it is that's special about you that allows you to do the things you do?

AD Nothing more than stubbornness and bloody-mindedness! I haven't got any special qualities, I'm fairly intelligent, but I'm not a genius. I'm not stronger than anybody else. I am able to face my fears, and I'm able to put myself into difficulties and just keep going.

C = Check-in agent P = Passenger

- C Good morning! Where are you flying to?
- P The Bahamas. Nassau. Flight 860.
- C OK, how many bags are you checking in?
- P Just the one.
- C Put it on the scales, please. ... I'm afraid that's over the weight limit, sir.
- P By how much?
- C Rather a lot, I'm afraid. It's 29½ kilos and you're only allowed 23. It means we have to charge an excess baggage fee of $75. That's £52.
- P What! That's the same as paying for an extra bag, isn't it?
- C No, a second bag would be $125 – £87.
- P Whoa, that's steep! Well I guess I'll just have to pay the charge, then.
- C Sorry about that, sir. You can pay at the service desk over there. And do you have carry-on luggage?
- P Yes, just this one.
- C Er ... , I'm afraid that's going to be a problem too, sir. It's above the size restrictions.
- P What?
- C It won't go in the baggage check – it needs to be 55 by 35 centimetres. This will have to go in the hold.
- P Oh no, I'm not paying another $125 for another bag!
- C Don't worry, sir, I won't charge you for that one.
- P Oh, well, thank you.
- C Here's your boarding pass. Your gate is 17A and it'll start boarding at 11.35. Your seat number is 50C.
- P Thank you.
- C Oh, it's just come up on my screen – that flight's been delayed by 1½ hours. You'll be boarding at 1.05 now. I am sorry.
- P It's just not my day, is it?!

Unit 7

7.3 I was a horrible teenager

N = Nina L = Lee T = Tanya

- N I feel bad about it now – I was a horrible teenager. I made my poor mum and dad suffer so much. I didn't mean to – but my friends were all-important and mum and dad were just embarrassing.
- L Tell me about it! I'll never forget going on this awful picnic with mine – I was about 14, I think.

- T Didn't you want to go?
 L No, they forced me to. We drove to the countryside and stopped to have our picnic by the river ... my dad put a rug down on the grass and wanted me to join them, but I refused to. I wouldn't get out of the car.
 T Why not?
 L Oh you know, I felt embarrassed. I didn't like the idea of sitting with my mum and dad on a rug, eating egg and tomato sandwiches. It just wasn't cool.
 T Your poor mum and dad.
 N Well, I remember standing in our kitchen yelling, 'I hate you! I hate you!' at my parents.
 T Why, what had they done? Or more to the point, had you done?
 N Oh, I'd persuaded them to let me go to this big party – and it was near my exams and I promised to be home by midnight and ...
 T And of course you weren't!
 N No, it was two o'clock and they kept calling me and I didn't answer my phone. I was grounded for a month.
 L Well, I remember when I'd just passed my driving test and I begged my mum to let me borrow her car and I crashed it – turned it over in a ditch.
 T Whoa! You two were horrible! Me, I was such a boring teenager. I didn't behave badly at all – my mum and dad were kind of cool – so maybe I didn't need to.

7.5 Best of friends

Kate I had a best and worst friend ... she was called Carly Robson. Everyone wanted to be Carly's friend – she could pick and choose her friends. She was really athletic – great at all sports, especially running and hockey. Teachers loved her because she won so many trophies for the school. She could do no wrong. Every now and then, when there was no one more interesting around, she'd let me be her friend and we'd go shopping together or something. Stupid me! Then she'd just drop me – walk past me in the corridor. I hate myself now for being so upset – but it took years for me to realize that she just wasn't worth it. She got bored with sport eventually – I'm not sure what she's doing these days. Last I heard she was working in a pub.

Dave Well, I met my best friend on my first day at university. I'd just moved into my student room when this huge family arrived to move Danni into the room next to mine. I'm an only child, so three small boys kicking off in the corridor outside my room filled me with horror. And then ... when they finally left, there were so many tears and hugs as they all said goodbye to their precious Danni. My dad had brought me to uni, and he had left after five minutes after a quick hug. Anyway, Danni and I introduced ourselves and in no time we were talking and laughing together ... so that was the beginning. Then we discovered we had a lot in common – we were on the same course and we both loved cooking. We ended up doing a lot of cooking for the other guys on our corridor. Well, that was 12 years ago ... and we're still best friends ... in fact ... erm ... we're married and expecting our first baby. You see, Danni, is Daniella. She's my best friend and my wife!

Molly My best friend started out as a penfriend. It's a remarkable story in a way. When I was 12, our teacher, Miss Potts (we had fun with that name) started a penfriend club at school. She had the names of lots of 12-year-old girls in America and Canada who wanted English pen pals and I got Carol – Carol Swift from Toronto. We started exchanging letters about school and sports, and then we just kept on writing and eventually emailing. We exchanged birthday and Christmas cards and wrote about all sorts – boyfriends, driving lessons, marriage, babies, divorce – good times, bad times. I felt that I really knew Carol – I could tell her anything and everything, but we didn't actually meet until we were 45. Carol came to London and we had a great two days together. I felt I'd known her all my life – well ... I suppose I had in a way. Now, of course, we Skype as well and I've been over to Toronto twice.

Sam When I was in nursery, Marfa (sic) was my best friend – I loved Marfa, but I'm not her best friend any more. She's a girl and I don't want a best girl friend ... sooo ... Oliver's my best friend now, we met in Class 1. 'Marfa cried when I told her ... she did ... really, but she's got lots more best friends now. I don't know why I like Olly – that's what we call him – but maybe it's 'cos we do stuff together, like football and stuff. Mrs Morgan, she's our teacher, calls us the terrible twins because we look the same – we've both got blonde, spiky hair, and we make a lot of noise – well she says we do. We have sleepovers at each other's houses – I kind of like that, but I miss mummy. I take my bunny blanket and Olly brings his monkey when he comes to us, so it's OK.

7.6 Body language

- Bob's hopeless at all sports. He can't even kick a football.
- The cat got up the tree easily enough, but I had to climb a ladder to get her down.
- Daniel, stop staring out of the window and get on with your work!
- Since you whistled that tune I can't get it out of my head.
- I hate it when my Aunt Mary hugs me tight. She wears this disgusting perfume and I smell of it afterwards.
- Daisy! You'll get brain freeze if you eat your ice cream so fast. Lick it gently.
- Do people kneel down to pray in all religions?
- I keep trying to stop biting my nails, but I can't. I can't kick the habit.
- I'm terrified of blowing up balloons in case they go 'pop'.
- Don't scratch that insect bite! You'll get an infection.
- By the end of the concert, we were all clapping our hands in time with the music.
- The CCTV camera showed the gunman pointing a gun at the bank clerk.
- My dad's useless at doing DIY. He can't even hit a nail with a hammer.
- My two-year-old nephew is so cute. He loves marching up and down like a soldier.

7.8 Exclamations

- His lectures are so boring! I can't help falling asleep.
- Is it for me? How lovely! That's so kind of you.
- What a coincidence! I didn't know Tom was your cousin.
- You won £1,000! What luck! I never win anything.
- That's such a stupid idea! It'll never work.
- We had such terrible weather! It rained every day.

7.9

Conversation 4

- A I hear you aren't coming to Max's 18th. What a pity!
 B Yes it is, but it's my grandpa's birthday, too.
 A But everyone's going to Max's. It'll be such fun!
 B I know, but it's Grandpa's 80th and he hasn't been well lately.

- A Ah, well – don't worry! Max'll understand.
 An 80th birthday is more important than an 18th!

Conversation 5

- A Carl texted Anna to say that he'd dumped her.
 B How dreadful! He couldn't tell her face to face?
 A Yeah. He's such a coward!
 B Well, I think she's well rid of him, don't you?

Conversation 6

- A My Wi-Fi keeps disconnecting.
 B How frustrating! But you know what they say ...
 A What?
 B Just try turning everything off and on again.
 A Yeah, I know, but I have to do that two or three times a day. It's so annoying.
 B Time to call an engineer!

Unit 8

8.1 Questions to Siri

- A Are you human, Siri?
 B Close enough, I'd say.
- A What are you doing after work?
 B What am I doing? I'm talking with you.
- A Where have I put my keys?
 B They'll probably be in the second-to-last place you look.
- A When will pigs fly, Siri?
 B When they figure out how to buy tickets.
- A When is the world going to end?
 B As long as you keep me charged, we should be just fine.

8.2 AlphaGo – a breakthrough for artificial intelligence

Why was it so important when the computer program AlphaGo beat a human at the Chinese game of Go in 2016? A computer had beaten a world chess champion 20 years before, so what was new?

Well, Go is more difficult and demanding than chess, and the computers that used chess programs could only do what humans had programmed them to do. AlphaGo was a new kind of program, which learns by itself. It learned 150,000 human games of Go, and then played against itself, over a million times each day. It quickly learned from its mistakes and developed a style of play that was so individual, it shocked even its creators. Real artificial intelligence had truly arrived, along with all the hopes and fears of what it might mean for our future.

8.3 Experts give their views on artificial intelligence

Lee Sedol Professional Go player

'Robots will never understand the beauty of the game the same way that we humans do.'
 After his defeat, Lee said that he hadn't expected AlphaGo to play the game so perfectly.

Demis Hassabis Creator of AlphaGo

'It's very exciting to start imagining what it might be able to tackle next.'
 Hassabis thinks AI is still decades away from human level intelligence, but could soon help solve problems such as climate change and cancer.

Nick Bostrom Philosopher

'Machine intelligence may be the last invention that humanity will ever need to make.'
 Bostrom says that the machines will then be better at inventing than we are. But he warns us that we must make sure they follow our preferences, not their own.

Nigel Shadbolt AI professor

'The danger is not artificial intelligence, it's natural stupidity.'

Shadbolt agrees that AI machines might do things we don't expect, but says they're not going to take control unless we're stupid enough to invite them to.

Stephen Hawking Cosmologist

'Success in creating AI would be the biggest event in human history. Unfortunately, it might also be the last.'

Hawking worries that the development of artificial 'superintelligence' could be the end of the human race.

Kim Simmons AI Consultant

'AI can help us to focus on what humans are uniquely good at.'

AI may mean that more jobs are done by machines, but Simmons says they won't be able to compete with us in creativity and human-to-human skills.

8.5 Is a robot going to take my job?

- Jessica Some news stories are already written automatically – sports and business ones, where it's mostly the numbers and names that change. That'll happen more, but I don't think machines will ever replace really good journalists. And I'm going to take time off and write a novel next year. Now, a machine writing a truly great novel about what it is to be human – that's not going to happen!
- Rob It's obvious machine intelligence is going to take over a lot of the work junior lawyers have done in the past. But I'm fine with that – I'll be happy for a machine to do all the boring research into past cases. A brilliant lawyer has to know how to play on human emotions in court, and a robot won't be able to do that!
- Derek Well, they say these driverless cars could take over the roads, so my job's not safe. But there's gonna be accidents, for sure, and then there'll be big problems. I mean, like, who'll be to blame? The car? The bloke that programmed it? And I'll tell you what we should do – replace them politicians with intelligent robots! They might have some better ideas ... and tell the truth!
- Hilary There are some restaurants now that are run by robots. People may go for it because it's new and different, so yes, my job is at risk, but they'll soon miss the human contact. And really, it depends on us to make the most of that. I mean, a slow, rude, unhelpful waiter or a robot – which are you going to choose? But ... a warm, friendly, funny waiter or a robot? The human's gonna win every time.

8.8 A brighter future

I = Interviewer N = Nicole Clarke

- I This week on Brighter Futures we're asking the big question – how can we keep the lights on? Where is our energy going to come from if we have to stop using fossil fuels? Our guest is Nicole Clarke, a professor in energy technology. Nicole, can we really make big cuts in the amount of fossil fuels we use?
- N We'll have to if we're serious about keeping the rise in global temperatures to below two degrees. But we don't have to be gloomy about it – we should start getting excited about other energy options because the possibilities are exciting.
- I OK, let's look at them then. Wind power – people have strong feelings about that, don't they?

N Yes. Some people are pretty negative about wind farms – saying they spoil the countryside. How do you feel about them?

I Erm, ... I like seeing one or two wind turbines – they can be quite beautiful. But when there are a lot of them together ... I don't know, there is something a bit ... almost scary about them?

N Mmm. Getting them offshore is the best solution – the UK now has the world's largest offshore wind farm, you know, it's in the Thames Estuary east of London.

I Wow, I didn't know that!

N Yes. Denmark is the leader, though. Forty per cent of its electricity comes from wind, and they're going to try and get to 80% by 2035.

I What about solar power – who's the leader, there?

N At the moment it's Germany!

I Really?

N Yes, which shows you don't need to be a very sunny country to make use of it! On some summer days, 50% of Germany's electricity comes from solar power.

I But solar panels can look ugly on buildings, can't they?

N Mmm, but they are getting much thinner, so you don't really notice them, and they can even be part of the windows of a building. It's an amazing fact that just one hour of the solar energy that lands on Earth is enough to power the whole world for a year, so we really do need to make more use of it.

I And it's obviously great for sunny countries?

N Yes. It's in those countries that you get the big solar parks that focus the sun's rays to heat water and produce electricity. The Ivanpah Plant in America's Mojave Desert is the biggest. It uses 347,000 mirrors – over a third of a million! It's incredible!

I Yes, I've seen it – it looks like something from science fiction. It's amazing!

N But the real dream solution is fusion energy, and that's a real possibility.

I Fusion energy is nuclear energy, yes?

N Yes, but it's not like the nuclear energy we use now. It's clean, and it uses hydrogen, which you can make from sea water, so we'll never run out of it. The problem is, you need to do it at temperatures of over 100 million degrees Celsius.

I Mmm, that sounds like a big challenge.

N Yes, but it's been done. Only for a minute or two, though, and very expensively. People think fusion energy could be a major source of electricity in 30 to 40 years, but I'm pretty sure we could do it a lot sooner with more research. We haven't spent nearly enough on research into new forms of energy. We just haven't made it important enough because we thought we could keep going with coal, oil and gas, but ... that's all going to change now.

8.11 Changing word stress

- A The doctors are going to operate on my grandma's knee.
B Oh, dear. I hope the operation goes well.
- A That's an amazing photograph, isn't it?
B Yes. It's by Mat Hennek – he's one of my favourite photographers.
- A Do you think it would be preferable to phone people rather than email them?
B Yes, I'm sure everyone would prefer that.
- A Did you explain the homework to Maria?
B I did, but I don't think she understood my explanation.

8.12 Arranging to meet

J = Jeff K = Kevin

- J Kevin, it's me, Jeff.
K Jeff! Long time no see. How are you doing?
J Good, thanks. Listen, I'm up in town later this week for a conference, and I might stay on till Sunday morning. I was wondering if we could meet?
K Oh, ... I'd love to, but this weekend of all weekends, I'm incredibly busy.
J Come on Kev! You must have some free time.
K Hang on! Let me check my diary ... OK ... go for it!
J Right. What are you doing Friday evening?
K Let me see ... sorry, I can't do Friday evening – it's my tango class. I really don't want to miss it, 'cos ... well there's this girl in the class that I'm really interested in.
J Say no more!
K I finish work early on Friday, though, so I could meet you late afternoon before the class.
J No, that won't work. The conference doesn't finish till 6.30 on the Friday. Have you got any free time on Saturday morning?
K Er, ... No. I'm having my hair cut at 10.00 and then I'm meeting my sister. She's going to show me the flat she's thinking of renting, and we're having lunch after that. I'm free most of the afternoon, though.
J That's no good, I'm afraid. I've arranged to meet some people from the conference – they could be useful contacts. So ... how about Saturday evening – but I'm guessing you're doing something then?
K Yeah, sorry, the evening's out for me. I'm going to the theatre with some friends – it's been booked for ages. But ... I have an idea. What time are you leaving on Sunday?
J Late morning. I'm getting the train at 11.55.
K Well then why don't we meet at the station?
J Yeah, that's a great idea. We could have a coffee there.
K I've got a better idea. There's a café next to the station that does a really good full English breakfast. Let's meet there and have breakfast. Shall we say half nine?
J Sounds good to me! But half nine? Can we make it ten o'clock? It is Sunday, you know!
K Fine, 10.00 it is. I'll see you then! Bye, Jeff. I hope the conference goes well.
J Thanks Kev. See you Sunday.

Unit 9

9.1 How nice are people really?

- In a large online poll, 81% of people said they would hand the bag in. Most studies on selfishness show that generally, people are nicer than we think they are.
- People would be much less likely to help if there were other people around because they would expect someone else to help.
- People would be much more likely to help a child who said he was lost if they lived in a small town. Half of the people who lived in big cities said they'd worry that someone was using the child to get money from them.
- Drivers of cheaper cars would be three times more likely to stop for people.
- Many studies have shown that only-children are no more selfish than anyone else. They've often had so much attention themselves, they're good at giving it to others.

9.2 Who cares? An experiment

A group of student priests were asked to prepare a talk on the story of The Good Samaritan. They were then told to go to another building to give their talk.

As they left, half of the students were told they were late and had to hurry. The others were told they had plenty of time. On the way, there was a man lying on the pavement, clearly in pain (it was an actor).

63% of the students who thought they had plenty of time stopped to help, but only 10% of those who thought they were in a hurry stopped. Some of them said that they hadn't noticed the man as they hurried past, but many of them stepped over him ... in order to go and give a talk on ... The Good Samaritan.

9.5 I just want to say thank you

- 1 Well, I was in Iran, crossing the Persian Desert. It was so very, very cold. I hadn't expected this, and I was worried that I couldn't feel my fingers any more. I was driving on this scooter and I had no gloves, and I was going on, on this long road. Suddenly I saw, there was a car, and as he got closer, he pulled his car in front of me and stopped and got out. Then he just simply took the lovely sheepskin gloves from his own hands and gave them to me. He couldn't speak English, I couldn't speak Farsi, his language, but he was away in a flash and I never said thank you to the person who probably stopped me losing my fingers. Wonderful!
- 2 In 2003, I was coming back from South Africa, from a holiday, and, I hate early morning in Heathrow, and I had to go on The Tube, so by the time I got to my least favourite Tube station, which is Earl's Court, it was packed rush hour. And, I just could not see with so many people, I couldn't see when the train came in. And there were two young girls who said, 'Can we help you?', and they stood on top of a thing, 'cos they weren't terribly tall themselves, and so they could see the train. They helped me on when it arrived, they'd insist on lifting my luggage, and found a place and made somebody stand up for me to sit down, and erm, it was just lovely! I would love to thank them, but they weren't... they'd probably never remember, but they just, just were so ... just helped me at the time I most needed it.
- 3 Back in the 80s, about 30 years ago, my wife and I thought we would do some shopping on a Saturday morning in Oxford Street, and we were with our young children who were then two, four, and six years old. And, we were on the first floor of a clothes shop, just browsing around, and I suddenly realized that my four-year-old son was missing, and I had a quick look round on the first floor, dashed down to the ground floor, and there was no sign of him. So I had to go out into the street, by which time I was really starting to panic. And I just found myself running up and down the street calling out his name and going into shops, and it was just about the worst moment of my life. But, fortunately my wife was much calmer and phoned the local police station, and to our amazement, they said that our son was there. Apparently what had happened is that a woman, this amazing woman, had seen my boy standing on the pavement, crying and clearly frightened, and made the decision to get a taxi and take him to the police station. But she never left any contact details, name and address, nothing. So, this has been the only opportunity for me to ever say thank you to this amazing woman whose actions saved the day. I sometimes dread to think what might have happened to him. So, if you're listening, thank you so much!

- 4 My daughter lost a purse, which we'd bought her years ago. I too had recently lost a purse. I left it on a bus, two young girls claimed it, so we thought the same thing would have happened to Tamsin's purse. The exceptionally kind person who picked it up, found the address on the driving licence, and put the purse with all its contents in an envelope and sent it to her. We were both really struck that someone could be so kind and go to so much trouble, and it was such a contrast with the experience that I had recently had, and I would love to be able to say thank you to that person.

9.7 Words with different meanings

- 1 A Oh no! Boring Barry keeps asking me out. He's just invited me to the cinema tonight.
B Well, make it obvious you're not interested. Tell him you're washing your hair tonight!
- 2 A Sssh! Did you hear that noise? It sounded like someone in the garden.
B It's probably just a fox. They often come round here at night.
- 3 A That China plate on the wall is gorgeous!
B Yes. My grandmother left that to me. It's probably worth quite a bit.
- 4 A I didn't like any of my school teachers.
B Shame. If you'd liked them, you might've stayed on at school.
- 5 A I lent James £20 two weeks ago, and he's never mentioned it since.
B He's obviously forgotten about it. If he'd remembered, he'd have paid you back by now.
- 6 A What's on the agenda for today's meeting?
B Oh, the usual discussion points, new plans, strategies, targets, and a review of why none of the last ones have worked!
- 7 A You can't keep taking on so much work! You've got to be sensible about what's possible.
B I know. I need to think more before I say 'yes' to work offers.
- 8 A Could you bring that chair over here?
B Which one? This red one?

9.8 Money matters

- 1 A What about this silk designer dress?
B Mmm, it's lovely, but it's out of my price range.
- 2 A Here's your bill.
B Thank you. Is service included?
- 3 A Hello, what's your exchange rate for euros to pound sterling?
B It's 0.79 at the moment.
- 4 A Could I have a strawberry ice cream, please?
B Sure. That's £1.80. You'd better be quick – the film's about to start.

Unit 10

10.1 What do you see?

- A These are great fun! Let's see if we can work them out.
B OK... I can see ... two rabbits.
A Two?! No, that one isn't a rabbit ...
B It looks like a rabbit to me. It's got big ears.
A No, no, those are a horse's ears! That picture's a horse or a seal.

- B Mmmmm, it might be a horse but I can't see a seal... but there's definitely a rabbit in this picture ... a rabbit and a duck!
A Yeah, they're easy to see. Now, what about this one? I can see the word 'good'.
B 'Good'? I can't see 'good' ... but I can see 'evil'.
A That's interesting! I can't see 'evil' ... Oh, yes now I can... I can see both words now. That's really clever!
B This drawing's clever too – it looks like four shelves but there can't be four.
A Yeah, four or three – it depends how you look at it. And this is another clever drawing.
B Which one?
A The one with the parallel bar.
B Parallel? It doesn't look parallel at all. It looks like a see saw.
A It is parallel. I've checked it with a ruler.
B Wow! Amazing! The diagonal lines must be creating the illusion.
A Yeah, I think you're right.
B Now, what about the guy with the earring! He could be looking straight at me ... on the other hand he ...
A ... he might be looking at me! ... And that guy, the soldier, doesn't he look miserable ...
B That's not a soldier! It's someone touching their toes.
A It must be a soldier – he's wearing a helmet ... and he's got his eyes closed.
B Really? I can't see that at all. But ... look at the eyes in this one... the skeleton! It looks like something from a horror movie and it's wearing an earring too.
A Yeah, this one's really weird, but look more closely ... it's not a skeleton and it's not an earring. It just looks like a skeleton.
B Huh?
A It's an old-fashioned lady looking at herself in a mirror.
B No! A lady? It can't be a lady. And what's the earring?
A I'm not so sure about that. It may be a candlestick.
B Well, whatever it is, it's scary. OK good fun! Is that the lot?

10.2 Fact or fiction?

- 1 Sunflowers turn to follow the sun.
FICTION: It is true that there are flowers that follow the sun, but, despite what many people believe, the sunflower is not one of them. Certainly, when you see a field of sunflowers, the flower heads are facing more-or-less in the same direction, but always in the same direction, from sunrise to sunset.
- 2 The milk of a hippopotamus is pink.
FACT: It is true that the colour of a hippo's milk is bright pink. This is because the milk contains two unique acids, and one of these is red, which when mixed with the white milk turns it pink. Hippos nurse their babies for about a year and are the only mammals to produce pink milk.
- 3 Salt water boils quicker than fresh water.
FACT: Salt water boils faster than pure water because salt water has a lower heat capacity. In other words, it takes less energy to raise the temperature of salt water than pure water. This means that the salt water heats up faster and gets to its boiling point quicker.
- 4 Ducks' quacks don't echo.
FICTION: This is a much-quoted scientific myth, but it is not true. Scientists have done experiments to prove this. But, where did this myth come from? Perhaps it's because quacks aren't usually loud enough to produce an echo.

5 A toilet flush rotates in a different way depending on which hemisphere you are in.

FICTION: Some people like to believe that the flow of water down the drain in sinks, bathtubs, or toilet bowls changes according to whether you are in the northern or southern hemisphere. This is not true. Drains can flow both clockwise and anti-clockwise in both hemispheres.

6 Hurricanes always have girls' names.

FICTION: This used to be true. From 1953 to 1979, only female names were used, but now both men's and women's names are used. One name for each letter of the alphabet. The same lists are reused every six years. These are the first seven names for 2020: Arthur, Bertha, Cristobal, Dolly, Edouard, Fay, and Gonzalo.

7 Elephants can't jump.

FACT: Elephants have the same number of bones in their feet as other mammals, but they can't jump. This is because the bones in an elephant's foot are more closely packed together than in other mammals, so they do not have the flexibility that you need to jump.

8 Too much sugar makes children hyperactive.

FICTION: Sugar does not change kids' behaviour. In 1994, a research study proved that a sugary diet did not affect behaviour. But, sugar does change one important thing: parents' expectations. After hearing that their children have had a lot of sugar, parents are more likely to say their child has become hyperactive, even when the sugar was not really sugar, but only a placebo.

9 Fish have a three-second memory.

FICTION: Scientists have proved that goldfish memory is nowhere near as short as three seconds. They conducted two experiments with fish food which proved that goldfish can actually remember things for as long as five months!

10.3 What are they talking about?

- 1 A A glass of dry white wine and a mineral water, please.
B Still or sparkling?
A Sparkling, please.
B Do you want ice and lemon with that?
A Just ice, thanks. How much is that?
- 2 A I can't believe it. My screen's frozen again.
B Switch it off, unplug it, and take the battery out. Then start it up again. That's the only thing that ever works for me.
A OK. Here goes.
- 3 A So how did it go?
B Not too bad, thanks.
A Were you very nervous?
B Yeah, but I tried not to show it.
A When will you hear?
B In a couple of days. They said they'd phone me at the end of the week and let me know.
- 4 A Have you any idea what to get them?
B Not really, but it should be something special.
A Yeah, 25 years is a long time.
B It would be nice to get something silver.
A Yeah. Why don't we club together and get something from both of us, then we can afford something really nice.
B Good idea. Mum and Dad would love that.
- 5 A Right! Left at the next crossroads.
B What? Left or right?
A I said 'left'! Right?
B What? -er whoops!

A Aargh! That was close! Now, left up that hill and look in your mirrors not at me! Right?

10.9

- a A I can't carry all these shopping bags.
B What on earth have you bought?
- b A Tom's broken his arm in three places.
B How on earth did he do that?
- c A There's someone at the door!

10.11 The man who posted himself to Australia

R = Reg Spiers J = John McSorley

I = Interviewer

- J We first met in the '62 Commonwealth Games that were held in Perth, Australia, and we immediately got on.
- R We just hit it off.
- I And both very accomplished athletes, national champions, record holders at the javelin.
- J You know we'd built up a friendship in Australia, and we wrote to each other.
- R People wrote letters in those days!
- J And then, there's a knock knock, knock on my door and it's Reg. He was over and fortunately I was able to put him up and he stayed, what, about four or five months.
- I But as you say Reg, you got injured, then you wanted to get home to see ... you were married by now, you had a little girl, you wanted to get home for her birthday.
- R And there was one catch; I didn't have any money!
- J Reg, after a little while got a job, and he was erm, earning some money at the airport, so while he was working there he was saving up to go home and then he had his wallet pinched.
- R So I had to find another way home.
- I So where, where did this idea come from, to disguise you as air freight?
- R Well I worked for Air France, and I worked in the export cargo section, so I saw animals coming through on aircraft and it just came to me. I thought, well, wait a minute, hang on a minute. The biggest piece of freight you could put on aircraft to go to Australia was, I remember, five feet, by three feet, by two and a half feet. That was the biggest that the plane could take.
- I But you thought, I know, I'll get in a box and send myself home to Australia
- R Why not? Ha ha ha ha. And I was in a hurry ha ha.
- I John, what did you think when you heard this idea?
- J Well, when he first came back with this idea, we thought you know he was joking and so on, but there was an intensity about it, and ... er, we thought, God, this guy's serious, so if he's gonna do it, I'd better make him a box.
- I So how did you go about making this box, John?
- J He told me it's got to be five feet, by three feet, by two and a half. Because Reg is about six foot two, well-built and handsome and all that sort of thing, so five feet by three feet, by two and a half allows him to sit up with his legs straight or lie back with his legs bent.
- I Where did you make this box, John?
- J Er, made it largely, largely in the flat, but we found that looking at it in the light, in a certain light, you could actually see through the cracks, so we had to line the inside of it with some paper,

'cos he, he actually went as 'Plastic Emulsion'.

- I That's what was written on the box was it? 'Plastic Emulsion'?
- J That's what was written on the box, to be sent to a Mr Graham and collected. We made up the company, a fictitious address in London, fictitious address in Perth.
- I Was your family in Australia aware of this plan, Reg?
- R No. No no no no. No, I wouldn't, they'd worry.
- I So the big day came, a Saturday in West London. Tell us what happened that day, how did you prepare Reg?
- R How do you prepare? You don't prepare, you just get in the box and go, ha ha!
- I John, when Reg is getting into this box, what have you put in there for supplies for him?
- J For supplies; well he, he's got a couple of plastic bottles, you know, one to pee in and one to drink. He's got, you know, various food items.
- R Mainly baked beans ... probably not a good move! Ha ha!
- I There's a thought!
- J Erm, he's got his bag, he's got a torch ...
- R Pillow and a blanket.
- I Were you strapped in there Reg?
- R Well there were straps in there, yes. If they turned the box upside down, which they did one time, it all held me in place.
- J Now, Reg had an enormous appetite, so we had to slow his system down.
- R Ha ha ha! I didn't eat for weeks.
- I Literally, you didn't eat for a week?
- R No, I didn't eat for a week. I was very, well, I was young.
- J Ha ha and then that was it, he was off.
- I So what's going on with this box that you're in Reg, while you're waiting for the plane to take off?
- R I can see out of, through the slats and they had a huge freight shed and they took the fr ... the crate in there and they put it up high.
- I Oh dear!
- R And then out to the aeroplane, see you later. Simple as that! It was pitch black most of the way. Ha ha, it was about 60 hours in the thing.
- I What were you thinking about then in there?
- R My life up to that point you know, all sorts of thoughts go through your mind, but I wasn't frightened. I'm up here, everything's working, I'm breathing, I'm not cold but it's not that comfortable, but if I can make it ... so I just carried on.
- I So next leg was to Bombay.
- R Bombay and it's so hot I've taken all my clothes off and then I think it went to Singapore and then I think it went to Perth. I knew when it hit Perth. The hold opened up, these Aussie guys came in and said 'this big so and so thing this is not for us is it?' And 'yeah it's for us' and I knew where I was, I'm home.
- I How did that feel to be back in Australia?
- R Ah I was thrilled, wonderful.
- I Did you make it in time for your daughter's birthday?
- R Yeah!
- I And your wife?
- R Happy to see me of course.
- I What did she say when you told her how you'd got home?
- R She didn't believe me ha ha ha ha, but then she thought about it for a moment and thought well, well yes, the silly, the silly man has done just that.

10.12 I've just found out ...

- A I've just found out that my sister's expecting a baby.
B That's fantastic. When's it due?
A I don't ever fall out with my wife.
B What, never? You're kidding! I don't believe it.
A I can't work out if I feel warm or cold today.
B Yeah. It's one of those days.
A I'm saving up to take my grandparents on holiday.
B That's kind. They must be delighted.
A I need to sort out my life. I've got problems at work and I've got problems with my boyfriend ...
B Poor you. Come on, let's go out for a drink. Take your mind off things.
A I've just come up with a fantastic idea.
B Uh! I'll believe it when I hear it.
A I'm going to take up rock climbing – I need a new hobby.
B Are you mad?! You feel dizzy climbing a step ladder.
A It's important to make up after an argument.
B Yeah, kiss and make up. Never let the sun go down on an argument.

Unit 11

11.2 Talking about you

- 1 Where did you have lunch today?
- 2 Where's your mother at the moment?
- 3 Do you prefer tea or coffee?
- 4 Do you know the name of the river in London?
- 5 Have you got a pet? What is it? What's its name?
- 6 What's your father's job?
- 7 How did you come to class?
- 8 Do you know the names of any English or American newspapers?
- 9 Where are you sitting in the room? Where is the teacher?
- 10 Where are you going after the lesson?

11.3 its or it's

- 1 Living in London has its disadvantages.
- 2 To start with, there's a lot of traffic.
- 3 Londoners enjoy their parks and open spaces.
- 4 For them, it's important to escape busy city life.
- 5 Londoners seem very busy. They're always in a rush.
- 6 Ethnic communities like the Bangladeshis have their own part of London, and the Koreans have theirs.

11.4 How would you like your newspaper, sir?

- 1 Jacob One thing I'd never dream of reading a print version of nowadays is newspapers. They look so old-fashioned to me, when I see them on the newsstand at the rail station every morning. These great big piles of paper you have to fold up and carry around with you, ... and then you have to find somewhere to throw them away when you've finished with them. Madness! I love reading my news online on a tablet – I read it on the train on the way to work, and in my lunch break. I read the Guardian, and it's beautifully-designed digitally. I also love reading the comment threads after the articles – you sometimes learn more from them than you do from the articles! Mmm, they're not always a great read, though. Some people write such miserable things on them! Always moaning about everything!
- 2 Karen I did a landscape design course at college, and computers were already the big thing then, ... so we did most of our projects using the software you can get for it – you can drag and drop different plants and trees and ... er, garden features onto your design, and then move them round, and ... change their size as well. It is cool, but we had to draw some designs by hand, just to show we could do it, and I realized that ... mmm, even though, mmm, I'm not the world's greatest drawer ... I enjoyed doing it that way. So now, I always start off drawing my projects by hand. It just feels more real, and if you're a gardener, which I was for a long time, you kind of like things being real, you know, down to earth. Trouble is, I usually do have to transfer what I've done on paper onto a software program to send to my clients – I don't think they'd be impressed with my drawings!
- 3 Luke I like having my music digital, and streaming it – it's brilliant that you can log on wherever you are and play your music. I like streaming films, too – it was a bore having to rent DVDs, or buy them and have them sitting around when you're never going to watch them again. But, the time it really bothers me when things are digital is when it comes to giving gifts. It's a bit rubbish at Christmas or on birthdays when you just give someone a piece of paper telling them you've bought them something they can download. You want to give them something solid, a gift they can hold and see the shape of and wonder what it is. I like wrapping them up really nicely, too. And it's nice to see them looking at the gift when they open it. Unless they don't like it of course! And it is harder to change something when it's real.
- 4 Emily I was pretty nervous about trying online dating at my age, but it's so much easier than those old-fashioned lonely hearts columns in newspapers. I used those a bit when I was young, but you never really knew who you were dealing with. Now you can find out so much about someone before you decide whether you want to meet them, and also chat online for a while before you make the decision. And the site I belong to offers great activities that you can do with people who share your interests – it's not just about meeting in bars, which I hate. It's such an easy way to meet new people, even if it doesn't end in romance. The thing I would like to bring back from the old days is old-fashioned love letters though – texts and emails can't match those!
- 5 Charlie I like playing games on my tablet, and chatting with friends online, and I like reading stuff on the Internet – we sometimes have to do that for homework. But when I'm reading for fun, I prefer proper books. It feels more special reading a book, especially when they have pictures in – the pictures aren't as big on a tablet. I like Roald Dahl stories best. I love reading them in bed at night – it's not so easy with a tablet. My other favourite thing is doing jigsaws – I've just done a 500-piece one I got for my birthday! You can do them online as well, and it's fun, but it's better with a real jigsaw – I like sorting all the pieces out into different shapes. But I don't like it when there's a piece missing!
- 6 Holly I can seem a bit old-fashioned when it comes to technology. Of course, I use a computer all the time at work, but I am one of those people who disapproves of everyone always being on their phones. But there's one gadget I absolutely adore – the satnav! It's a lifesaver for me! I'm hopeless at finding my way around when I'm driving, and it used to be a nightmare using a map, trying to work out where you are when other drivers are beeping and shouting at you for going so slow. You still see those books of maps at petrol stations – I can't believe that people still use them. I mean, who on earth buys them?! Now I have Derek (that's what I call my satnav man) telling me when to turn. I like the calm way it gives directions – Derek never gets angry with me! But it can sometimes feel a bit dangerous if I stare at the satnav too long, though. I forget that that's not the real road – it's the one out of the window!

11.8 What is it?

- 1 It's one of those things you use in the kitchen. You use it to do the washing up.
- 2 It's long and thin and sharp at one end. The other end has a hole in it, and you use it with some very thin stuff that goes through the hole. You can use them together for putting buttons on clothes.
- 3 It looks like a metal bowl, but it has holes in it. You use it to drain the water from things like pasta.
- 4 It's the stuff you wash clothes with. You put it in the washing machine. It's a powder and it smells like soap.
- 5 It's used for fastening your clothes together if a button has fallen off. It's a kind of metal pin, but it has a top on it that covers the sharp end, and stops it hurting you.
- 6 They're made of metal. You use them to hold sheets of paper together. You can get small ones, or really big, thick ones if you have a lot of sheets of paper that need to be kept together.
- 7 It's a kind of ruler. You use it to measure things that are very long, like a room. It's made of metal, usually.
- 8 It's something you use when you're travelling. You put it on your suitcase so no one can get into it. You have a key to open it, to take it off.
- 9 You know! It's got a round, metal bit at one end, and the other end is made of glass. You put it in a lamp to make a light.

11.9

- 1 It's one of those things you use in the kitchen.
- 2 It's the stuff you wash clothes with.
- 3 It's used for fastening your clothes together.

A Uh huh. What's it for?
B Well, it's for cheese or vegetables like carrots.
A And what do you do with it?

B If you don't want a big piece of cheese, or a whole carrot, but you want little pieces, you can push ... you can move ... I don't know how to say it. Like this!

A Ah! OK! What you mean is ...

Unit 12

12.2 Just leave him alone!

A tramp was sleeping on a park bench, when a lady stopped and asked him what time it was. The tramp was annoyed at being woken up. He told her that he didn't have a watch, so he didn't know the time and he went back to sleep. A bit later a boy stopped. He also woke the tramp and asked if he knew the time. The tramp replied angrily that he had no idea what the time was and he added that he was trying to sleep. By now he was really fed up so he wrote a sign:

I DON'T KNOW WHAT THE TIME IS!

He put it next to him on the bench and went back to sleep. Half an hour later a policeman was passing. He read the sign, woke the tramp up and told him that it was nine o'clock.

12.7 A wonderful way to make a living

I = Interviewer G = Giovanni

- I Today, I am in Venice, not far from the Piazza San Marco. The sun is out, it's a beautiful, beautiful day, the place is literally crawling with tourists. It seems like a wonderful place to visit, but would it be a wonderful place to make a living?
Now here is a promising place, we are going to see if we can interview a professional gondolier.
- G My name is Giovanni Giudice and I am a gondolier and I would never lose this for anything.
- I There is a reason why this man sounds so cheerful, because apart from the obvious delights of working in Venice, Giovanni was initially going to become a lawyer. A career he wisely gave up at aged 26.
- G Now it's ten years I don't touch a book of law anymore, because it is a style of life that I do prefer, you meet people with no problems and ... er you don't make money on problems of people and ... er you make money on the happiness of people on their holidays, you meet families when they are together, not when they are getting divorced and ... er all these things.
- I Back where I come from in the United States everyone hates lawyers, but everyone wants their kid to be a lawyer because they make a lot of money. But there's very few opportunities to be a gondolier. You had parents who were professionals, how did they react when you said, 'I'm going to give up law to become a gondolier'?
- G They didn't react well, but I was sure it was the good choice.
- I When you say that they didn't react well, could you be a bit more specific?
- G These are the words of my father: 'Giovanni, if you want to do the bloody gondolier, you find yourself, kicked out.'
- I As far as I'm aware, the only other place in the world you can be a gondolier is in the desert at Las Vegas at the Venetian Hotel, where a singing gondolier will sweep you down their grand canal for a ride like no other. There are more than a thousand lawyers in Venice and only 425 gondoliers, except that becoming a gondolier is more difficult than becoming a lawyer; for a start there's the €30,000 price tag on the boat. So, how did you learn to be a gondolier?
- G I found myself with a godfather, now don't laugh, it's not the godfather of mafia. Godfather is somebody who introduces you to life, his name is David DeScarper and for me he's most important person in my adult life, because gave me the job. So I spent two years more or less, always with him. Luckily every single boy had his own godfather; every single boy had his own 'santolo' – there is a Venetian word.
- I Most of the gondoliers that I've seen look to be in pretty good physical shape.
- G Because you don't see them naked. (ha ha ha)
- I OK, OK, I've seen a few overweight gondoliers, do they reach a point where they can't be gondoliers anymore? They sink the boat?
- G Ha, you don't see them anymore because they just sink. Actually there is a gondolier we call the Maestro, he is next to be retired actually, and he is really really really overweight.
- I When we just went past the boat where the accordion player was playing and the men were singing, the gondolier wasn't singing, do gondoliers still sing?

G Well actually this is a myth, we don't sing, we never sang actually. Never, never, never, never. It doesn't happen.

- I Do you decide in the beginning of the year how much money you want to make a year?
- G No, no, no, you don't – to a fisherman ask this question, you don't know how many people will come. You can decide how many days of holiday you want to do. So my target for this year is to give up the 1st of December and come back the 1st of April, because I want to see a bit of winter in Australia, they say the surf is excellent over there you know, spend all March on the East coast of Australia.
- I Are there unhappy gondoliers?
- G Oh there's plenty of them, yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah, all those who were not lawyers once upon (ha ha), they don't realize what a mine of gold and happiness they have in their hands. This a job in which actually you can get upset every five minutes, and you can laugh every two, and I decided to laugh. I'm healthy, finally wealthy, and so, I mean, why not to laugh. The only thing is that you don't have that much time to follow your sentimental life, so you have to find a very patient girl, who will know what does it mean to be a wife of a gondolier.
Can you hear this bell?
- I Yes
- G These are my favourite bell. It is the bell of San Marco square it rings at noon and midnight wherever you will be in the city – at midnight tonight in the full silence – you will hear this bell again and it is a beauty, isn't it?

12.8 Ways of speaking

Conversation 1

- A Mmm – I'm not sure about that shirt. I don't think yellow suits you. Why do you always go for such bright colours?

Conversation 4

- A We want to do something special for our anniversary.
- B What about a weekend away in a spa hotel?
- A Not my kind of thing. I really hate being massaged and told to relax. It makes me more stressed.

- A That's fine – I don't mind the expense, it's a special occasion.

Unit 2

➔ 2.1 Verbs

- 1 There are three classes of verbs in English.

Auxiliary verbs do, be, and have

These are used to help form tenses of other verbs, and to show forms such as questions and negatives.

Modal auxiliary verbs

Must, can, should, might, will, and would are examples of modal auxiliary verbs. They 'help' other verbs, but unlike do, be, and have, they have their own meanings. For example, must expresses obligation; can expresses ability. (See Units 5, 8, 9, 10)

Full verbs

These are all the other verbs in the language, for example, play, run, help, think, want, go, see, eat, enjoy, live, die, swim, etc.

- 2 Do, be, and have can also be used as full verbs with their own meanings.

do I do my washing on Saturdays.

be We are in class at the moment.

have They have three children.

- 3 There are two forms of have in the present, have and have got.

I have a job. Do you have a flat? He doesn't have a car.
I 've got a job. Have you got a flat? She hasn't got a car.

➔ 2.2 Auxiliary verbs and tenses

- 1 be and the continuous forms

Be + verb + -ing is used to make continuous verb forms which describe activities in progress and temporary activities.

He 's washing his hair. (Present Continuous)
We were watching TV at 9.00. (Past Continuous)
I 've been learning English for two years. (Present Perfect Continuous)
I'd like to be lying on the beach right now. (Continuous infinitive)

- 2 be and the passive voice

Be + past participle is used to form the passive.

Paper is made from wood. (Present Simple passive)
My car was stolen yesterday. (Past Simple passive)
The house has been redecorated. (Present Perfect passive)
This homework needs to be done tonight. (Passive infinitive)

There is an introduction to the passive on p143.

- 3 have and the perfect forms

Have + past participle is used to make perfect verb forms.

He has worked in seven different countries. (Present Perfect)
She was crying because she had received some bad news
(Past Perfect)
I'd like to have met Napoleon. (Perfect infinitive)

Perfect means 'completed', so Present Perfect means 'completed now'. Past perfect means 'completed before a time in the past'.

➔ 2.3 Auxiliary verbs and negatives

- 1 To make a negative, add -n't to the auxiliary verb. If there is no auxiliary verb, use don't/doesn't/didn't.

Positive

He's working.
I was thinking.
We've seen the play.
She works in a bank.
He went on holiday.

Negative

He isn't working.
I wasn't thinking.
We haven't seen the play.
She doesn't work in a bank.
He didn't go on holiday.

- 2 It is possible to contract the auxiliaries be and have and use not.

We're not going to Italy after all. (= We aren't going to Italy ...)
I've not read that book yet. (= I haven't read that book yet.)
BUT I'm not working. NOT ~~I amn't working.~~

2.4 Auxiliary verbs and questions

- 1 To make a question, invert the subject and the auxiliary verb. If there is no auxiliary verb, use do/does/did.

Question

She's wearing jeans.	What is she wearing?
You were born in Paris.	Where were you born?
Peter's been to China.	Has Peter been to China?
I know you.	Do I know you?
They didn't go out.	Why didn't they go out?

- 2 There is usually no do/does/did in subject questions (when there is no new, different subject introduced after the question word).

Who wants ice cream?	What flavour ice cream do you want?
Who broke the window?	How did you break the window?

2.5 Auxiliary verbs and short answers

Short answers are very common in spoken English. If you just say Yes or No, it can sound rude. To make a short answer, repeat the auxiliary verb. In the Present and Past Simple, use do/does/did.

Short answer

Are you coming with us?	Yes, I am.
Have you had breakfast?	No, I haven't.
Does she like walking?	No, she doesn't.
Did Mary phone?	Yes, she did.

Unit 3

3.1 Present Simple

Form

The form is the same for I/we/you/they.

I work from 9–5 p.m.	They don't work full time.
Where do you work?

He/She/It: add -s or -es, and use does/doesn't in questions and short answers.

He doesn't work at weekends.	Where does she live?
Do you live in Bristol?	Yes, we do.
Does he have a car?	No, he doesn't.

Use

The Present Simple is used to express:

- 1 an action that happens again and again (a habit or routine).

I go to work by car.	She calls me every day.
------------------------------------	---------------------------------------

- 2 a fact that is always true.

Ronaldo comes from Brazil.	My daughter has brown eyes.
--	---

- 3 a fact that is true for a long time (a permanent state).

He works in a bank.	I live in a flat.
-----------------------------------	---------------------------------

Spelling of he/she/it forms

- 1 Most verbs add -s to the base form of the verb.

wants	eats	helps	drives
--------------	-------------	--------------	---------------

- 2 Add -es to verbs that end in -ss, -sh, -ch, -x, and -o.

kisses	washes	watches	fixes	goes
---------------	---------------	----------------	--------------	-------------

- 3 Verbs that end in a consonant + -y change the -y to -ies.

carries	flies	worries	tries
----------------	--------------	----------------	--------------

But verbs that end in a vowel + -y only add -s.

buys	says	plays	enjoys
-------------	-------------	--------------	---------------

3.2 Adverbs of frequency

- 1 We often use adverbs of frequency with the Present Simple.

0%	_____	50%	_____	100%
never	rarely	hardly ever	not often	sometimes	often	usually	always

- 2 They go before the main verb, but after the verb to be.

I usually start at 9.00.	They're usually here by now.
I rarely see Peter these days.	We're rarely at home at weekends.

- 3 Sometimes and usually can also go at the beginning or the end.

Sometimes we play cards.	We play cards sometimes.
Usually I go to bed early.	I go to bed early usually.

3.3 Present Continuous

Form

am/is/are + verb + -ing

I'm playing tennis.	What's he doing?
He's cooking lunch.	Where are you living?
I'm not enjoying my new job.	Aren't they working today?

Short answer

Are you going by train?	Yes, I am./No, I'm not.
--------------------------------	--------------------------------

Use

The Present Continuous is used to express:

- 1 an activity that is happening now.

Don't turn the TV off. I'm watching it.
You can't speak to Lisa. She's having a bath.

- 2 an activity that is not necessarily happening at the moment of speaking, but is happening around now.

Don't take that book. Jane's reading it.
I'm doing a French evening class this year.

- 3 a temporary activity.

Peter is a student, but he's working as a waiter during the holidays.
I'm living with friends until I find a place of my own.

- 4 a planned future arrangement.

I'm having lunch with Glenda tomorrow.
We're meeting at 1.00 outside the restaurant.

Spelling of verb + -ing

- 1 Most verbs add -ing to the base form of the verb.

going	wearing	visiting	eating
--------------	----------------	-----------------	---------------

- 2 Verbs that end in one -e lose the -e.

smoking coming hoping writing

BUT lie → lying

Verbs that end in -ee don't drop an -e.

agreeing seeing

- 3 Verbs of one syllable, with one vowel and one consonant, double the consonant.

*stop stopping get getting run running

If the final consonant is -y or -w, it is not doubled.

playing showing

➔ 3.4 State verbs

- 1 There are certain verbs that are usually only used in the Present Simple. They describe states or conditions, not activities.

Verbs of thinking and opinions believe think understand suppose expect agree doubt know remember promise mean imagine realize deserve guess

I believe you.

Do you understand what I mean?

I know what you mean.

Verbs of emotions and feelings like love hate care hope wish want prefer adore dislike

I like black coffee. Do you want to go out? I don't care.

Verbs of having and being belong own have possess contain cost seem matter need depend weigh resemble fit involve

This book belongs to Jane. How much does it cost?

He has a lot of money.

Verbs of the senses

look hear taste smell feel sound

The food smells good. My hair feels soft.

We often use can when the subject is a person.

I can hear someone crying.

Can you smell something burning?*

- 2 Some of these verbs can be used in the Present Continuous, but with a change of meaning. In the continuous, the verb expresses an activity, not a state. Compare:

I think you're right. (opinion)	We're thinking of going to the cinema. (mental activity)
He has a lot of money. (possession)	She's having a bad day. (activity)
I see what you mean. (= understand)	Are you seeing Nigel tomorrow? (activity)
The soup tastes awful. (state)	I'm tasting the soup to see if it needs salt. (activity)

➔ 3.5 The passive

Form

to be + past participle

The tense of the verb to be changes to make tenses in the passive.

Are you being served?* (Present Continuous)

My car is insured with ASM. (Present Simple)

Were you taken to visit the cathedral?* (Past Simple)

I've been invited to a wedding. (Present Perfect)

I'd love to be introduced to a film star. (Passive infinitive)

Use

- 1 Passive sentences move the focus from the subject to the object of active sentences.

Shakespeare wrote Hamlet in 1601 while he was living in London.*

Hamlet, the most famous play in English literature, was written by William Shakespeare.

We choose the active or the passive depending on what we are more interested in.

- 2 By and the agent (the subject in the active sentence) are often omitted in passive sentences if ...

... the agent is not known:

I was burgled last night.

... the agent is not important:

This bridge was built in 1886.

... the agent is obvious:

I was fined £100 for speeding.

- 3 The passive is associated with an impersonal, formal style. It is often used in notices and announcements.

Customers are requested to refrain from smoking.

It has been noticed that reference books have been removed from the library.

- 4 In informal language, we often use you, we, and they to refer to people in general to avoid using the passive.

You can buy stamps in lots of shops, not just post offices.*

They're building a new department store in the city centre.*

We speak English in this shop.*

Many past participles are used as adjectives.

I'm very interested in modern art.

We were extremely worried about you.

I'm exhausted! I've been working hard all day.

➔ 3.6 Present Simple and Present Continuous passive

Form

Present Simple passive (am/is/are + past participle)

Most workers are paid monthly. Is service included in the bill?

Present Continuous passive (am/is/are being + past participle)

This road is being widened. Are you being served?

Use

The uses are the same in the passive as in the active.

My car is serviced every six months. (routine)

Computers are used everywhere. (fact that is always true)

The house is being redecorated at the moment. (activity now)

Unit 4

4.1 Narrative tenses

We use different past tenses to describe moments and periods of time in the past. Look at the diagram. Read the sentences.

4.2 Past Simple

Form

The form of the Past Simple is the same for all persons.

He left at three o'clock.
They arrived three weeks ago.
She didn't finish on time yesterday.
I didn't visit my parents last weekend.
When did he finish the report?
What time did they leave?

Short answer

Did you enjoy the meal? Yes, we did./No, we didn't.

Use

The Past Simple is used to express:

- 1 a finished action in the past.

We met in 2000.
John left two minutes ago.

- 2 actions that follow each other in a story.

Mary walked into the room and stopped. She listened carefully.
She heard a noise coming from behind the curtain and ...

- 3 a past situation or habit.

When I was a child, we lived in a small house by the sea. Every day,
I walked for miles on the beach with my dog.

This use is often expressed with used to. See 4.5 on p145.

We used to live in a small house ... I used to walk for miles ...

Spelling of verb + -ed

- 1 Most regular verbs add -ed to the base form of the verb.

worked wanted helped washed

- 2 When the verb ends in -e, add -d.

liked used hated cared

- 3 If the verb has only one syllable, with one vowel + one consonant, double the consonant before adding -ed.

stopped planned robbed

But we write cooked, seated, and moaned because there are two vowels before the consonant.

- 4 The consonant is not doubled if it is -y or -w.

played showed

- 5 In most two-syllable verbs, the end consonant is doubled if the stress is on the second syllable.

pre'ferred ad'mitted

But we write 'entered and 'visited because the stress is on the first syllable.

- 6 Verbs that end in a consonant + -y change the -y to -ied.

carried hurried buried

But we write enjoyed, because it ends in a vowel + -y.

There are many common irregular verbs.

Irregular verbs p160

Past Simple and time expressions

Look at the time expressions that are common with the Past simple.

I met her	last night. two days ago. yesterday morning.	in 2001. in summer. when I was young.
------------------	---	--

4.3 Past Continuous

Form

was/were + verb + -ing

I was learning French. They were driving to Paris.
We weren't waiting for a long time.
What were they doing? Where was he studying?

Short answer

Were you looking for me? Yes, I was./No, I wasn't.
Were they waiting outside? Yes, they were./No, they weren't.

Use

The Past continuous is used:

- 1 to express activities in progress before, and probably after, a particular time in the past.

At seven o'clock this morning, I was having my breakfast.
You made a lot of noise last night. What were you doing?

- 2 for descriptions.

It was a lovely day and the sun was shining. Jan looked beautiful.
She was wearing a green cotton dress.

- 3 to express an interrupted past activity.

When the phone rang, I was having a shower.
While we were playing tennis, it started to rain.

- 4 to express an incomplete activity.

I was reading a book during the flight. (I didn't finish it.)
Compare: I watched a film during the flight. (the whole film)

4.4 Past Simple or Past Continuous?

- 1 Sometimes both tenses are possible. The Past Simple focuses on past actions as complete facts. The Past Continuous focuses on the duration of past activities, often describing being in the middle of them. Compare:

A I didn't see you at the party last night.
B No. I stayed at home and watched the football.
A I phoned at 8.00, but you didn't answer.
B Sorry, I was watching the football.

- 2 Questions in the Past Simple and Past Continuous refer to different time periods. The Past Continuous asks about activities that began before; the Past Simple asks about what happened after.

A What were you doing when the accident happened?

B I was shopping.

A What did you do when you saw the accident?

B I phoned the police.

4.5 used to

Used to expresses a habit or state in the past that is now finished.

I used to read comics when I was a kid. (but I don't now)

Did you use to read comics when you were a child?

This town didn't use to be a nice place to live, but then it changed.

4.6 Past Perfect

The Past Perfect refers to an action in the past that was completed before another action in the past.

Form

The form of the Past Perfect is the same for all persons.

Positive and negative

I	'd (had)	left when the post came.
You	hadn't
We

Question

Where had	you, she, they	been before?
-----------	----------------	--------------

Short answer

Had he already left? Yes, he had./No, he hadn't.

Use

- 1 The Past Perfect is used to make clear that one action in the past happened before another action in the past.

When I got to my car, I saw that someone had broken into it.

I didn't go to the cinema because I'd seen the film before.

- 2 The Past Simple tells a story in chronological order.

Sue met Pete at university. They got married. They were together for six years. They divorced last month.

The Past Perfect can be used to tell a story in a different order.

Sue and Pete divorced last month. They 'd met at university, and had been together for six years.

- 3 Notice the difference between these sentences.

When I got to the party, Peter went home.
(= First I arrived, then Peter left.)

When I got to the party, Peter had gone home.
(= First Peter left, then I arrived.)

- 4 The Past Perfect Continuous refers to longer actions or repeated activities.

We were exhausted because we 'd been driving all day.
I went to the doctor because I 'd been having a lot of headaches.

4.7 Past tenses in the passive

Form

Past Simple passive: was/were + past participle

The museum was opened in 1987.

Past continuous passive: was/were being + past participle

The trees were being cut down.

Past Perfect passive: had been + past participle

The house had been redecorated.

Use

The uses are the same in the passive as in the active.

The bridge was built in 1876. (finished action in the past)

The bridge was being repaired when it collapsed. (interrupted past activity)

The letter didn't arrive because it had been sent to my old address. (one action before another action in the past)

Unit 5

5.1 have to

Form

has/have + to + infinitive

You have to go to school. He doesn't have to wear uniform.

She has to study hard. We don't have to take exams.

Does she have to study maths? Do they have to leave now?

Use

- 1 Have to expresses strong obligation.

You have to work hard if you want to succeed.

- 2 Have to expresses a general obligation based on a law or rule, or based on the authority of another person.

Children have to go to school until they are 16.

Mum says you have to clean your room before you go out.

- 3 Have to doesn't necessarily express the opinion of the speaker.

The doctor says I have to lose weight.

- 4 Have to has all verb forms. Must doesn't.

I had to work last night. (Past)

You'll have to study hard. (Future)

She's rich. She's never had to do any work. (Present perfect)

I hate having to get up on winter mornings. (-ing form)

5.2 have got to

- 1 Have got to is common in British English, but it is more informal than have to. It is more spoken than written.

We've got to get up early tomorrow.

I'm in trouble! You've got to help me!

- 2 Have got to expresses an obligation now, or on a particular occasion soon.

I've got to leave for work now. Bye!

He usually starts work at 9.00, but tomorrow he's got to start at 8.00.

- 3 Have to expresses a general repeated obligation.

I always have to tell my parents where I'm going.

Teachers have to prepare lessons and correct homework.

5.3 Modal and related verbs

These are the modal verbs:

can	could	may	might	will	would	shall	should must	ought to

They are used before other verbs and add meanings, such as certainty, possibility, obligation, ability, and permission.

You must be exhausted. I can swim. It might rain.

Form

- 1 There is no -s in the third person singular.

She can ski. He must be tired. It might rain.

- 2 There is no do/does/don't/doesn't in the question or negative.

What should I do? Can I help you?
You mustn't steal! He can't dance. I won't be a minute.

- 3 Modal auxiliary verbs are followed by the infinitive without to. The exception is ought to.

You must go. I'll help you. You ought to see a doctor.

- 4 They have no infinitives and no -ing forms. Other phrases are used instead.

I'd love to be able to ski.
I hate having to get up on cold winter mornings.

- 5 They don't usually have past forms. Instead, we use them with Perfect infinitives.

You should have told me about the party. I might have come!

Or we use other phrases.

I had to work hard in school.

- 6 Could is used with a past meaning to talk about a general ability.

I could swim when I was six. (= general ability)

To talk about ability on one specific occasion, we use was able to/managed to.

The prisoner was able to/managed to escape by climbing onto the roof of the prison.

Use

- 1 Modal verbs express our attitudes, opinions, and judgements of events. Compare:

'Who's that knocking on the door?'
'It's John.' (This is a fact.)

'Who's that knocking on the door?'
'It could/may/might/must/should/can't/ll be John.' (These all express our attitude or opinion.)

- 2 Each modal verb has at least two meanings. They can all express possibility or probability. (See Units 5 and 10.)

I must post this letter! (= obligation)
You must be tired! (= deduction, probability)

Could you help me? (= request)
We could go to Spain for our holiday. (= possibility)

You may go home now. (= permission)
'Where's Anna?' 'I'm not sure. She may be at work.' (= possibility)

➔ 5.4 Obligation: should, ought to, and must

Use

- 1 Should and ought to express mild obligation, suggestions, or advice. They express what, in the speaker's opinion, is the right or best thing to do. We often use them with I think/don't think ...

You're always asking me for money. I think you should spend less.
You shouldn't sit so close to the television! It's bad for your eyes.
You ought to be more careful with your money.

- 2 We often use Do you think ... ? in the question.

Do you think I should see a doctor?
What do you think I should wear to the party?

- 3 Must, like have to, expresses strong obligation. Must can express an obligation that involves the speaker's opinion. It is personal.

I must get my hair cut. You must visit your parents.

- 4 Must is also associated with a formal, written style.

All visitors must show proper ID.

have to and must

- 1 Have to and must are sometimes both possible.

I must be home by midnight. I have to be home by midnight.

- 2 There is sometimes a difference in meaning. Must usually expresses the feelings and wishes of the speaker.

I must buy my sister a birthday card.

Have to often expresses an obligation that comes from somewhere else.

I have to be at work by 9.00.

Have to is used more than must. If you don't know which to use, use have to.

- 3 Question forms with have to are more common.

Do I have to do what you say? Must I ...? is unusual.

Remember, have to has all verb forms. Must has no past form and can only refer to future time when used to express obligation.

don't have to and mustn't

- 1 Don't have to and mustn't are completely different. Don't have to expresses absence of obligation – you can, but it isn't necessary.

You don't have to put a photo of you on your profile, but I usually do.
When you go into a shop, you don't have to buy something.

- 2 Mustn't expresses negative obligation – it is important NOT to do it!

You mustn't steal other people's things. It's wrong.
You mustn't drive if you've been drinking. You could kill someone!

need to

Need to can also be used to express obligation. It is not a modal verb in form however, and follows the pattern of full verbs.

She needs to work long hours at the moment.
Do we need to show our passports?
They didn't need to change trains.

➔ 5.5 Permission: can and be allowed to

Use

The main use of can is to express ability.

I can swim.

Can and be allowed to express permission. Can is more informal and usually spoken.

You can borrow my bike, but you can't have the car. I need it.
You're allowed to get married when you're 16.

5.6 Making requests: can, could, will, and would

1 There are many ways of making requests in English.

Can I speak to you, please? Will you help me, please?
Could I ask you a question? Would you pass me the salt?
Would you mind passing me the water?
Do you mind if I open the window?
Would you mind if I closed the window?

2 Could is a little more formal; can is a little more familiar. Could I ... ? and Could you ... ? are very useful because they can be used in many different situations.

Could I try on this jumper? Could you tell me the time?

To be very formal, or polite, it's only necessary to add possibly to a request with could.

Could I possibly use your phone to make an important call?

3 Here are some ways of responding to requests:

A Excuse me! Could you help me?
B Sure./Of course./Well, I'm afraid I'm a little busy right now.
A Would you mind if I opened the window?
B No, not at all./No, that's fine./Well, I'm a little cold, actually.

5.7 Making offers: will and shall

1 The contracted form of will is used to express an intention, decision, or offer.

Come over after work. I'll cook dinner.
'It's Jane's birthday today.' 'Is it? I'll buy her some flowers.'

2 Shall ... I/we ... ? is used in questions with the first person, I and we. It expresses an offer, a suggestion, or a request for advice.

Shall I carry your bag for you?
Shall we go out for a meal tonight?
Where shall we go?

Unit 6

6.1 Present Perfect

1 The same form (have + past participle) exists in many languages, but the uses in English are different. In English, the Present Perfect expresses the effect of the past on the present.

PAST PRESENT PERFECT PRESENT

2 Present Perfect means 'completed before now'. The Present Perfect does not express when an action happened. If we say the exact time, we use the Past simple.

In my life, I have travelled to all the continents.
I travelled around Africa in 1998.

6.2 Present Perfect

Form

has/have + past participle

I've lived in Rome. They haven't bought their flat.
She's lived in London. How long have they known Peter?
He hasn't lived here long. How long has she been married?

Short answer

Have you always lived in Budapest? Yes, I have./No, I haven't.

Use

There are three main uses of the Present Perfect.

1 Unfinished past

The Present Perfect expresses an action that began in the past and still continues.

We've lived in the same house for 25 years.
They've been married for 20 years.

Be careful! Many languages express this idea with a present tense, but in English this is wrong.

Jan has been a nurse for ten years.
NOT ~~Jan is a nurse for ten years.~~

Time expressions

Notice the time expressions that are common with this use.

	two years		1970
	a month		August
for	a few minutes	since	8.00
	half an hour		I was a child
	ages		Christmas

We use for with a period of time and since with a point in time.

2 Experience

The Present Perfect expresses an experience that happened at some time in one's life. The action is finished, but the effects of the action are still felt in some way.

I've been to the United States. (I know now what it's like there.)
Have you ever had an operation? (at any time in your life, so you know now what it's like to have one)

Exactly when the action happened is not important. Questions and statements about definite times are expressed in the Past Simple.

When did you go to the United States? I broke my leg once.

Time expressions

The adverbs ever, never, and before are common with this use.

Have you ever been to Australia? I haven't tried sushi before.
I've never tried bungee jumping.

3 Present result

The Present Perfect expresses a past action that has a clear present result. The action is usually in the recent past.

The taxi hasn't arrived yet. (We're still waiting for it.)
What have you done to your lip? (It's bleeding.)

We often announce news in the Present Perfect.

Have you heard? The Prime Minister has resigned.
Susan's had her baby!

More details will be in the Past Simple.

She resigned because she lost a vote of no confidence.
It's a boy. It was a very easy birth.

Time expressions

The adverbs yet, already, and just are common with this use.

I haven't done my homework yet. (negative)
Has the postman been yet? (question)
I've already done my homework.
She's just had some good news.

Be careful with been and gone.

He's been to the United States. (experience – he isn't there now)
She's gone to the United States. (present result – she's there now)

6.3 Present Perfect or Past Simple?

- 1 The Present Perfect can express unfinished actions. The Past Simple expresses completed actions.

Present Perfect

I've lived in Texas for six years.
(I still live there.)
I've written several books.
(I can still write some more.)

Past Simple

I lived in Texas for six years.
(Now I live somewhere else.)
Shakespeare wrote 30 plays.
(He can't write any more.)

- 2 The Present Perfect refers to indefinite time. The Past Simple refers to definite time. Notice the time expressions used with the two tenses.

Present Perfect – indefinite for a long time.

I've done it since July.
before.
recently.
I've already done it.
I haven't done it yet.

Past Simple – definite yesterday.

last week.
two days ago.
I did it at eight o'clock.
in 1987.
for a long time.

Be careful with this morning/afternoon, etc.

Have you seen Amy this morning? (It's still morning.)
Did you see Amy this morning? (It's the afternoon or evening.)

6.4 Present Perfect Simple passive

Form

has/have been + past participle

It	has been	sold.
They	have been

Use

The uses are the same in the passive as in the active.

Two million cars have been produced so far this year.
(unfinished past)

Has she ever been made redundant? (in her life)
'Have you heard? Two hundred homes have been washed away by a tidal wave!' (announcing news)

6.5 Present Perfect Continuous

Form

has/have + been + -ing

She's been studying for three years.
They haven't been working here long.
How long have they been living there?

Use

The Present Perfect Continuous expresses:

- 1 an activity that began in the past and is continuing now.

I've been studying English for three years.
How long have you been working here?

Sometimes there is no difference between the simple and the continuous.

I've played the piano since I was a boy.
I've been playing the piano since I was a boy.

The continuous can express a temporary activity, while the simple expresses a permanent state.

I've been living in this house for the past few months. (temporary)
I've lived here all my life. (permanent)

Remember: State verbs (see 3.4 p143) are rarely used in the continuous.

I've had this book for ages. I've always loved sunny days.

- 2 a past activity that has caused some result connected with that activity, which is seen in the present now.

I've been working all day. (I'm tired now.)
Have you been crying? (Your eyes are red.)

The past activity might be finished or it might not. The context usually makes this clear.

*Look out of the window! It's been snowing! (It's stopped now.)
I've been writing this book for two years. (It still isn't finished.)
I'm covered in paint because I've been decorating the bathroom.
(It might be finished or it might not. We don't know.)

6.6 Present Perfect Simple or Continuous?

- 1 Present Perfect Simple means activity is completed. The present result we talk about is the reason we've been doing that activity.

I've painted the kitchen. It looks fantastic! (the result is the painted kitchen)

Present Perfect Continuous expresses an activity over a period of time, which may or may not be completed. If we talk about a present result, it is not usually the purpose of that activity, but some other result connected with doing it.

I've been painting the kitchen. That's why I've got paint in my hair.
(the result is paint in my hair)

We use the simple if the result we talk about is the final number or quantity, because the simple expresses completion. The continuous isn't possible.

I've been reading all day. I've read ten chapters.
She's been eating ever since she arrived. She's eaten ten biscuits already.

- 2 Some verbs have the idea of a long time, for example, wait, work, play, try, learn, rain. These verbs are often found in the continuous.

It's been raining all day.
I've been learning English for three years.

Some verbs don't have the idea of a long time, for example, find, start, buy, die, lose, break, stop. These verbs are more usually found in the simple.

I've lost my passport.
Have you started your Christmas shopping yet?*

These verbs can sometimes be used in both tenses. In the continuous, it means that the action has been repeated over a longer period.

I've cut my finger. (One short action.)
I've been cutting firewood. (Perhaps over several hours.)

Unit 7

Verb patterns

The infinitive

- 1 The infinitive is used after some verbs.

We've decided to move abroad. I'm trying to phone Pete.
I want to go home. She'd love to meet you.

- 2 Some verbs are followed by a person + the infinitive.

They asked me to help them. He told me to apply for the job.

3 Make and let are followed by a person + the infinitive without to.
She'll make you feel welcome. I'll let you know when I'm coming.

4 The infinitive is used after some adjectives.
*It's impossible to save money. Pleased to meet you.
It's great to see you. It was good to hear your news.*

The -ing form

1 The -ing form is used after some verbs.
*I enjoy reading history books. I don't mind helping you.
He's finished washing the car. We like walking.*

2 Some verbs are followed by an object + -ing.
*I hate people telling me what to do.
You can't stop me doing what I want.*

3 The -ing form is used after prepositions.
*I'm good at finding things. We're thinking of going to Sweden.
He's afraid of being mugged. I'm looking forward to meeting you.*

Unit 8

➔ 8.1 Future forms

- 1 There is no future tense in English. Instead, English has several forms that can refer to the future.
- I'll see you later. (will)
We're going to see a film tonight. (going to)
I'm seeing the doctor tomorrow. (Present Continuous)
If the traffic's bad, I might be late. (might)
Who knows? You may win! (may) Take an umbrella. It could rain later. (could)*
- 2 The difference between them is not about near or distant future, or certainty. The speaker chooses a future form depending on how he/she sees the future event. Is it a plan, a decision, an intention, an offer, an arrangement, or a prediction?

➔ 8.2 will/going to and the Present Continuous

Form

Positive and negative

*I'll see you later. I won't be late.
We're going to stay in a hotel. We aren't going to rent a cottage.
I'm meeting Jan for lunch. I'm not seeing her till 2.00.*

Question

*When will you be back?
Where are you going to stay?
What time are you seeing Jan?*

We avoid saying going to come or going to go.

We're coming tomorrow. When are you going home?

Facts and predictions

will

- 1 The most common use of will is as an auxiliary verb to show future time. It expresses a future fact or prediction. It is called the pure future or the Future Simple.
- We'll be away for two weeks.
Those flowers won't grow under the tree. It's too dark.
You'll be sick if you eat all those sweets!*

- 2 Will for a prediction can be based more on an opinion than a fact.
- I don't think Laura will pass her exam. She doesn't do any work.
I am convinced that inflation will fall to three per cent next year.*

going to

- 1 Going to can also express a prediction, especially when there is evidence now that something is certain to happen.
- She's going to have a baby. (We can see she's pregnant.)
It isn't going to rain today. (Look at that beautiful blue sky.)*
- 2 Often there is no difference between will and going to.
- I think this government will ruin the country.
I think this government is going to ruin the country.*

Plans, decisions, intentions, and arrangements

will

Will is used to express a decision, intention, or offer made at the moment of speaking.

*I'll have the steak, please. NOT ~~I have the steak...~~
There's the doorbell! I'll go and see who it is. NOT ~~I go...~~*

going to

Going to is used to express a future plan, decision, or intention made before the moment of speaking.

*When I grow up, I'm going to be a doctor.
We're going to paint this room blue. We've bought the paint.*

Arrangements

- 1 The Present Continuous can be used to express a future arrangement between people. It usually refers to the near future.
- We're going out with Jeremy tonight.
I'm having my hair cut tomorrow.*
- 2 The things you put in your diary are the kinds of events that are expressed by the Present Continuous for the future.
- I'm meeting Peter tonight.
I'm seeing the doctor in the morning.*
- 3 You can't use the Present Simple for this use.
- I'm having lunch with Sarah. NOT ~~I have...~~
What are you doing this evening? NOT ~~What do you do...~~*
- 4 Sometimes there is no difference between an arrangement and an intention.
- We're going to get married in the spring.
We're getting married in the spring.*

➔ 8.3 Future possibility: may/might/could

Form

May, might, and could are modal verbs.

Positive and negative

I	may	see you later.	I	may not	get the job.
	might could

Question

Questions about future possibility are often asked with Do you think ... will ... ?

Do you think you'll get the job?

Use

- 1 May, might, and could all express a future possibility.

It	may might could	rain later.
----	-----------------------	-------------

- 2 May can be more formal.

The government may increase income tax.

- 3 Could suggests something less definite.

*I could be a champion if I trained hard.
The house is nice, but it could be beautiful.*

Unit 9

9.1 Conditionals

There are different ways of making sentences with if. It is important to understand the difference between sentences that express:

possible conditions = first conditional improbable or impossible conditions = second conditional impossible past conditions = third conditional no condition = zero conditional

Possible conditions

If I see Dave, I'll tell him to call you.

This is a sentence about reality.

*If I see Dave ... = a real possibility
... I'll tell him to call you. = the result of a possible situation*

Improbable or impossible conditions

If I had the money, I'd buy a Mercedes.

This is a sentence which is different to reality.

*If I had the money ... = not impossible, but the reality is I don't have the money.
... I'd buy a Mercedes. = the result of an improbable situation*

Some situations that are different to reality are impossible to change.

*If I had longer legs, I'd be able to run really fast.
If I had longer legs ... = impossible. The reality is I don't have long legs and I can't change that.*

Impossible past conditions

If I'd known you were coming, I'd have cooked you a meal.

This is a sentence about an impossible past situation. It didn't happen, and now it's too late to change the result.

*If I had known ... = impossible, because I didn't know
... I'd have cooked = the result of an impossible past situation*

No conditions

*If I get a headache, I take an aspirin.
If metal is heated, it expands.*

These are sentences that are always true. They refer to 'all time', and are called zero conditionals. If here means when or whenever.

9.2 Second conditional: improbable or impossible conditions

Form

if + Past simple, would + verb

Positive

*If I won some money, I'd go around the world.
My father would kill me if he could see me now.*

Negative

*I wouldn't give up my job if I won the lottery.
If I saw a ghost, I wouldn't talk to it.*

Question

*What would you do if you saw someone shoplifting?
If you needed help, who would you ask?*

Was can change to were in the condition clause.

If I If he	were rich,	I he	wouldn't have to work.
---------------	------------	---------	------------------------

Other modal verbs are possible in the result clause.

*I could buy some new clothes if I had some money.
If I saved a little every week, I might be able to buy a car.*

Use

- 1 We use the second conditional to express an unreal situation and its probable result. The situation or condition is improbable, impossible, imaginary, or different to known facts.

*If I were the president of my country, I'd increase taxes.
(But it's not very likely that I will ever be the president.)
If my mother was still alive, she'd be very proud.
(But it's impossible because she's not alive.)*

- 2 If I were you, I'd ... is used to give advice.

If I were you, I'd refuse.
I'd take it easy for a while if I were you.*

- 3 When the condition is understood, it is common to find the result clause on its own.

*What would you do if you had lots of money?
I'd travel. I'd give it all away.
I'd buy my mum and dad a nice house. They'd love that!

- 4 Would can express preference, especially with rather.

*I'd love a cup of tea.
I'd rather have coffee, please.
What would you rather do, stay in or go out?*

- 5 Would can express a request.

Would you open the door for me?
Would you mind lending me a hand?*

9.3 First or second conditional?

Both conditionals refer to the present and future. The difference is about probability and possibility, not time. First conditional sentences are real and possible. Second conditional sentences express situations that will probably never happen, or are impossible.

*If I lose my job, I'll ... (My company is doing badly. There is a strong possibility of being made redundant.)
If I lost my job, I'd ... (I probably won't lose my job. I'm just imagining.)
If there is a nuclear war, we'll all ... (Said by a pessimist.)
If there was a nuclear war, we'd ... (But I don't think it will happen.)
If the world had only 100 people in it, 26 of them would be children.
(But it would be impossible for there to be only 100 people in the world.)*

9.4 Third conditional: impossible past conditions

Form

if + Past Perfect, would + have + past participle

Positive

*If I'd (had) worked harder, I'd (would) have made more money.
They'd (would) have been here hours ago if they'd (had) followed my directions.*

Negative

*If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes, I wouldn't have believed it.
If you'd listened to me, you wouldn't have got lost.*

Question

*What would you have done if you'd been me?
If the hotel had been full, where would you have stayed?*

Use

We use the third conditional to express an impossible situation in the past and its probable result. It is too late! These things can't change.

*If she'd known he was cruel, she wouldn't have married him.
My parents wouldn't have met if they hadn't studied at Oxford University.*

9.5 might/could have done

Use

Might have done and could have done express possibilities in the past that didn't happen.

*Thank goodness you went to hospital. You might have died.
She could have married anyone she wanted.*

They are found in the result clauses of third conditional sentences.

*If I'd told him I had no money, he might have given me some.
If I'd really wanted, I could have been a professional footballer.*

Might have done and could have done can express criticism. With this use, they are similar to should.

*You might have told me it was her birthday!
She could have helped tidy the flat instead of going out!*

9.6 should have done

Use

Should have done expresses advice for a past situation, but the advice is too late!

*You should have apologized. He wouldn't have been so angry.
You shouldn't have said she looked old. She really didn't like it.*

Should have done can express criticism.

You should have asked me before you borrowed my car.

9.7 Relative clauses

- 1 Relative clauses identify which person or thing we are talking about. They give more information about the person or thing.

*The boy has gone to the beach. (Which boy?)
The boy who lives next door has gone to the beach.*

*The book is very good. (Which book?)
The book that you gave me is very good.*

*There is a photo of the hotel. (Which hotel?)
There is a photo of the hotel where we stayed.*

- 2 We use who/that to refer to people, and which/that to refer to things.

*This book is about a girl who marries a millionaire.
What was the name of the horse that won the race?*

- 3 When who or that is the object of a relative clause, and a new subject is introduced immediately after it, it can be left out.

*The person (who) you need to talk to is on holiday.
The film (that) I watched last night was very good.*

But when who or that is the subject of a relative clause, it must be included.

*I like people who are kind and considerate.
I want a computer that's easy to use.*

- 4 Which can be used to refer to the whole previous sentence or idea.

*I passed my driving test on the first attempt, which was a surprise.
Jane can't come to the party, which is a shame.*

- 5 We use whose to refer to something that belongs to someone.

*That's the man whose daughter you met last night.
That's the woman whose dog ran away.*

- 6 We can use where to refer to places.

*The hotel where we stayed was right on the beach.
We went back to the place where we first met.*

9.8 Participles

Participles after a noun define and identify in the same way as relative clauses.

*That woman driving the red Porsche is my aunt.
The men seen outside the jeweller's were probably the thieves.*

Unit 10

Modal verbs of probability

Modal auxiliary verbs can express ability, obligation, permission, and request. They can also express probability, or how certain a situation is. There is an introduction to modal auxiliary verbs on p145.

10.1 Probability in the present and future

- 1 Must and can't express the logical conclusion of a situation.
must = logically probable can't = logically improbable
We are not absolutely sure, but we are nearly certain.

*He must be exhausted. He hasn't slept for 24 hours!
Sue can't have a ten-year-old daughter! She's only 24!
Aren't they answering? They must be in bed. They can't be out this late!*

- 2 May/Might/Could express probability in the present or future.
May/Might + not is the negative. Couldn't is rare in this use.

*He might be lost. Or he may be stuck in traffic.
Dave and Beth aren't at home. They could be at the concert, I suppose.
We may go to Greece for our holiday. We haven't decided yet.
Take your umbrella. It might rain later.
I might not be able to come tonight. I might have to work late.
They may not know where we are.*

- 3 The continuous infinitive is formed with be + -ing.

*You must be joking! They can't still be eating!
Peter might be working late. They may be coming on a later train.*

10.2 Asking about possibilities

Question forms with modal verbs of probability (Might she be ...?) are unusual. We usually use Do you think ...?

'Do you think she's married?' 'She can't be.'

'Where do you think he's from?' 'He might be Portuguese.'

If you use a modal verb in the question, it will usually still come after Do you think ...?

Do you think he might be Portuguese?

10.3 Probability in the past

- 1 The perfect infinitive is formed with have + past participle.

He must have caught a later train.

They might have lost our phone number.

- 2 These forms express degrees of probability in the past.

He must have been exhausted.

She can't have told him about us yet.

The letter may have got lost in the post.

He might have changed his mind.

They could have moved house.

- 3 The continuous infinitive is formed with have + been + -ing.

Unit 12

12.1 Reported speech and thought

- 1 It is usual for the verb in the reported clause to move 'one tense back' if the reporting verb is in the past tense (e.g. said, told).

Present → Past

Present Perfect → Past Perfect

Past → Past Perfect

will → would

'I'm going.' He said he was going.
 'She's passed her test.' He told me she had passed her test.
 'My father died when I was six.' She said her father had died when she was six.
 'I'll see you later.' She said she'd see me later.

The verb also moves 'one tense back' when we are reporting thoughts and feelings.

I didn't know he was a teacher. I thought he worked in a bank.
I forgot you were coming. Never mind. Come in.
I didn't realize you were here.
I hoped you would call.

- 2 There is no tense change if ...

... the reporting verb is in the present tense (says).

'The train will be late.' He says the train will be late.
 'I come from Spain.' She says she comes from Spain.

... the reported speech is about something that is still true.

'I hate football.' I told him I hate football.
 'Rainforests are being destroyed.' She told him that rainforests are being destroyed.

- 3 Some modal verbs change.

can → could will → would may → might

'She can type well.' He told me she could type well.
 'I'll help you.' She said she'd help me.
 'I may come.' She said she might come.

Other modal verbs don't change.

'You should go to bed.' He told me I should go to bed.
 'It might rain.' She said she thought it might rain.

Must stays as must, or changes to had to.

'I must go!' He said he must/had to go.

12.2 Reporting verbs

- 1 We rarely use say with an indirect object.

She said she was going. NOT ~~She said to me ...~~

- 2 Tell is always used with an indirect object in reported speech.

She told	me the doctor us her husband	the news.
-----------------	---------------------------------------	-----------

- 3 We can use that after say and tell.

He told her (that) he would be home late.
She said (that) sales were down from last year.

- 4 Many verbs are more descriptive than say and tell, for example:

explain promise invite insist admit complain warn offer refuse

Sometimes we report the idea, rather than the actual words.

'I'll lend you some money.' He offered to lend me some money.
 'I won't help you.' She refused to help me.

- 5 There are different verb patterns for reporting ideas.

verb + sb + infinitive

He told me to go away.
They asked me to teach them English.
I invited her to come.
We encouraged him to apply for the job.
She reminded me to post her letter.

verb + infinitive

She promised to help.
They offered to lend me some money.

verb + that + clause

He explained that he would be home late.
She complained that she never had any free time.
They admitted that sales were down that year.
I agreed that it would be best to stop trying.

- 6 We use tell for reported statements and reported commands, but the form is different.

Reported statements

He told me that he was going.
She told them what had been happening.

Reported commands

He told me to keep still. The police told people to move on.

- 7 We use ask for reported commands and reported questions, but the form is different.

Reported commands

He asked me to open my suitcase.
She asked me to leave.

Reported questions

He asked me what I did for a living.
She asked me why I had come.

- 8 For negative commands, use not before to.

He told me not to tell anyone.
The police warned people not to go out.

12.3 Reported questions

- 1 The word order in questions is different in reported speech. There is no inversion of subject and auxiliary verb and there is no do/does/did.

'Why have you come here?' I asked her why she had come here.
 NOT ~~I asked her why had she come.~~

'What time is it?' He wants to know what time it is.
 NOT ~~He wants to know what time is it?~~

'Where do you live?' She asked me where I lived.
 NOT ~~She asked me where did I live?~~

- 2 If there is no question word (What, Who, Why, Where, ...), use if or whether.

She wants to know if she should wear a dress.
 whether

- 3 The rules are the same when we report questions that are thoughts.

I didn't know what was happening.
I wondered where she'd bought her dress.
We couldn't understand what they were saying.

The Good Samaritan

The story of The Good Samaritan

A man was travelling along a country road in the area where he lived, when he was attacked by robbers. They stole everything he had, and left him half dead at the side of the road. A local priest was going down the same road later, and when he saw the man, he passed by on the other side of the road. The same thing happened with another man from the same community who came past. The next man who came along was a stranger from a different area, Samaria, and people from Samaria (Samaritans) were seen as enemies in this region. But this Samaritan saw the injured man and felt sorry for him. He took care of his injuries and took him to an inn for the night.

The next day he paid the innkeeper, and said 'Look after this man, and when I return, I will pay any extra expenses you may have.'

So, we're told that we should 'love our neighbour,' but in this case, the traveller's neighbour was a stranger from a different community.

A story (2) The Trojan horse

2 Compare your stories with the story below.

THE TROJAN HORSE

The Greeks and the Trojans had been at war for ten years.

The exhausted Greek army was camped outside the city of Troy, when the Greek king Odysseus suddenly had a good idea. He knew that horses were sacred animals to the Trojans, so he decided to build a huge, hollow wooden horse on wheels. A horse big enough for some of his soldiers to hide inside.

The horse was duly built and some of the soldiers climbed inside. The others set fire to the camp and pretended they were going to sail back home to Greece, defeated. In fact they hid nearby.

The Trojans, delighted that the Greeks had left, immediately came out of the city gates and found the horse. They were very curious indeed. As part of the plan, the Greeks had left behind one soldier hiding near the horse. The Trojans soon found him and asked him about the horse. He said it was an offering to the goddess Athena.

The Trojans tried to pull the huge horse into the city. However, it was so big that they had to tear down part of the city wall to get it in. They took it to the temple of Athena, and had a big party to celebrate victory over the Greeks and the end of the war.

Finally, everyone was exhausted from all the festivities and they fell asleep. Now the Greek soldiers crept out of the horse. They killed all the guards on the walls and then signalled to the Greeks on the other side to attack Troy.

There was a bloody battle and the Greeks won easily. All the Trojan men were killed, and the women and children were taken back to Greece as slaves.
